Dock strike closes two mills

Widow wins $100,000

A 59-year-old widow and mother of six has claimed a $100,000 prize in the May 23 Western Express lottery.

Mrs. Irene Goble, who makes $12.96 a day as a part-time cook at the Hampton Street Silver Threads Service, says she plans to continue working for the time being.

She said she promised to stay on the job while the other cook is away on holidays.

After that Goble is uncertain about her plans, although she may spend some of her winnings on a visit to England.

Mrs. Goble came to Canada as a war bride in 1946. Her husband, Boyd, died in 1965.

Her six children are living in Quesnel, Cobble Hill and Kitimat except for Debbie, 18, who remains at home. The oldest child is 34.

Mrs. Goble said she has been buying one or two tickets a week from a pensioner at the Silver Threads centre since she started working there this spring.

She said she was so stunned when she first saw she had a winning number that she kept the ticket for a week, constantly checking to make sure the numbers were correct.

2,500 Island workers made idle by walkout

A stepped-up strike by B.C. longshoremen has closed down two Vancouver Island pulp mills, idling more than 2,500 woods employees.

Members of the International Longshoremen's Union walked off the job Monday crippling seven West Coast ports in a move that may bring federal government intervention.

The 2,500 longshoremen said earlier they wouldn't strike until midnight Wednesday but they jumped the gun.

Union president Bob Peebles said the surprise walkout started at about noon and by midnight Monday night had effectively shut down the ports of Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster, Nanaimo, Prince Rupert, Port Alberni and Chemainus.

Peebles said the decision to move the strike deadline ahead resulted from discontent among members who had rejected three contract offers recommended by their negotiating committee.

The last rejection was by a one-vote margin.

There were no ships in Victoria at the time of the walkout and so the strike has had no immediate effect here.

However, McMillan Bloedel's pulp and paper plant in Port Alberni has been shut down by longshoremen's pickets, putting about 1,260 employees out of work.

The company's pulp and sawmill operation at Harmac has also been shut down resulting in the layoff of more than 1,300 workers.

MacBlo spokesman Tom Williams said from Vancouver it won't take long before the shutdown begins to affect supplies of newsprint.

He said prior to the closure, the paper mills had no inventory and were sending newsprint out to their customers as fast as they made it.

He said four ships were caught behind ILWU picket lines on Vancouver Island.

B.C. Forest Product's operation in Chemainus was operating normally today. There are no ships in for loading and a company spokesman said there aren't any expected in the near future.

Although the main effect of the strike on Vancouver Island will be on the movement of newsprint, lumber and other cargo, the interruption in the movement of wheat will likely be the factor which catches the federal government's attention.

Newly-appointed Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander indicated today that there would be no immediate intervention.

He said in Ottawa that "the public interest must be protected but added the right to strike must also be honored.

Alexander said he is watching the strike closely and it was discussed at today's cabinet meeting.

"I'm being briefed and I'm giving it a lot of thought. What can be done remains to be seen."

Don Mazankowski, responsible for transport and the Canadian wheat board, said: "We want to avert a (long) strike at all possible costs."

Throughout the last Parliament, the Conservatives attacked the outgoing Liberal government for tie-ups in the grain-handling system.

Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon, a federally-appointed conciliation commissioner, has urged the union to put a revised offer to another membership vote.

The revised proposal calls for a pay increase of 90 cents an hour in each year of a three-year contract, but other benefits would bring wages up a total of 30 per cent over the life of the agreement, he said.

"The negotiating committee thought it would be completely insane to put our membership to another vote," Peebles said.

"We held the meetings and because of the unrest we had to do something to deal with it and this is what we did."

An offer by the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association was rejected outright by the union membership. The union's bargaining committee prepared a counter offer which was accepted by the association, only to be rejected by one vote.

New dive taken by $

TORONTO (UPC) — The Canadian dollar has dropped to its lowest point since March after a two-day nosedive triggered by two recent pieces of bad economic news.

The dollar, after trading steadily above the 86-cent (U.S.) mark since March, dropped at one point below 85 cents U.S. Monday after traders had time to react to Friday's disappointing trade figures and Monday's report of a billion-dollar drop in Canada's foreign reserves in May.

In Montreal at noon today the U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 11-100 at $1.1747. In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 2-25 at $0.8513.

Pitfield resigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Pitfield, the senior civil servant who helped oversee the transfer of power from his friend Pierre Trudeau to Prime Minister Joe Clark, has resigned.

Clark announced the resignation at a news conference Tuesday, naming Marcel Masse to replace Pitfield as privy council clerk and secretary to the cabinet.

Masse, 38, a lawyer and economist, was deputy secretary to the cabinet under Trudeau.

Fire ravages freighter

COPPER HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A fire raged through a 220-metre Canadian Great Lakes freighter for eight hours today and six sailors were missing and feared lost in the burned-out area of the crippled vessel. The other members of the all-Canadian crew took to life rafts.

Witnesses on shore 16 kilometres away said the ship, the Cartiercliffe Hall, looked "like a bonfire" before the blaze burned itself out.

Nineteen crew members of the Cartiercliffe Hall were picked up from life rafts in Lake Superior by two other freighters, the U.S. Coast Guard said. Five men were reported seriously burned and two others were less seriously hurt.

Shortly before the fire was declared out about 1 p.m., two coast guardsmen and the ship's engineer boarded the vessel and found no evidence of the missing men, the coast guard said.

But the boarding party could not immediately approach the still-smouldering engine room, where the fire started and where earlier reports had the missing men, authorities said.

Nearby waters were being searched "in the hope that the men got overboard," one coast guard officer said.

He said the missing men included a porter, two oilers, two deckhands and a helmsman.

Though some earlier coast guard reports had put the number of missing at five, David Blakely, sales and traffic manager for the ship's owner in Montreal, said six were unaccounted for and late in the morning all coast guard units agreed.

Blakely said the crew was made up entirely of Canadians. He could not provide their names or home towns.

The ship was built in 1959 as a deep-sea bulk carrier, he said, and converted to a laker in 1977.

A coast guard medical corpsman, who viewed the ship from a helicopter that helped evacuate the injured, said he believed the interior of the ship was "pretty badly burned."

Gas squeeze worse by 9%

Times News Services

Throughout the U.S. the gasoline squeeze for June apparently will be almost 9 per cent tighter than it was last summer, a proposition that has already sparked hoarding, speculation, violence and an argument over the merits of "moonshine in the gas tank."

The Lundberg Letter, an authoritative petroleum industry newsletter, said deliveries this month from major oil companies will run about 91.4 per cent of the supply available a year ago.

A convoy of 18 trucks circled the Capitol in Washington and other rigs blockaded truck stops around the country Monday as threats of a countrywide truckers strike grew louder.

The independents, who own and operate their own rigs, say they are at the end of the road unless something is done about the cost of diesel fuel.

"We might be here two days, two weeks, or two months," said Henry Douglas, 40, operator of one of about 20 tractor-trailer rigs that parked at Boswell's Truck Stop on U.S. 67 at Newport, Ark. "We can't leave. When you're out of money and out of fuel, you're in trouble."

In addition to cutting the cost of fuel, which they say has soared as high as $1.14 a U.S. gallon — four-fifths of a Canadian gallon — in some areas, the truckers want guaranteed 100 per cent fuel allocations.

Fire forces 747 down at Comox

The aircraft was flying from Seattle to Tokyo when the fire broke out.

The pilot radioed the base about 6:20 a.m., saying he had a fire in the No. 4 starboard outboard engine.

No one was injured.

Manned by a crew of 20, the plane's passengers included 368 military personnel and their dependents.

Capt. Jim Gregory of CFB Comox said the plane's crew and passengers were given customs clearance to remain on the base and another plane is expected to arrive later today.

That's it, says granny after having triplets

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rosemarie Bulych has a lot of experience with big families.

And it's the kind of experience she'll need, because the 41-year-old grandmother of two gave birth to triplets last week.

However, she is not short of help.

"I have eight sisters who have all volunteered their help," she said in an interview Monday.

As well, Mrs. Bulych's daughter Karen, who has two girls aged four and one, lives only three blocks away.

The event was not unexpected as doctors told Mrs. Bulych five months ago that she was going to have triplets, but the birth was still a special occasion in the Bulych household.

"It's wonderful," said husband Paul, 49, a demolition contractor.

"It's going to make our life much better. It's something to be proud of."

The babies, all girls, were born at Vancouver General Hospital on Friday night.

The two smallest infants, who weighed 3 pounds, 14 pounds ounces and 3 pounds, 5 ounces, where in incubators and were expected to remain in hospital for some time. The third girl, who weighed 5 pounds, 4 ounces, is expected to be released at the end of the week.

Mrs. Bulych, who was released from hospital Sunday, credited God for bringing her and the triplets safely through the ordeal.

"We're not religious but we owe it all to God. It's not religion, but it's truth."

The couple, who also have a son, Andrew, 7, at home, said a child was planned.

"This will be it now though," said Bulych.

The girls haven't been named, but the names Rebecca Rose, Pauley Andrea and Rosalie June are being considered, said Mrs. Bulych.

PC mortgage plan in fall budget

Times News Services

OTTAWA — An early fall budget with implementation of the Progressive Conservative mortgage deductibility program getting top priority, were promised Monday by Finance Minister John Crosbie.

He warned, however, that people may have to wait for some of the other tax cuts promised during the election campaign.

Speaking with reporters shortly after being sworn into Prime Minister Joe Clark's cabinet, the 48-year-old lawyer from St. John's, Nfld., said introduction of a program to allow homeowners to deduct mortgage interest and property taxes is "a political imperative."

"It's the one that the public has taken to its bosom."

But as for Clark's campaign promise of $2 billion in tax cuts for low- and middle-income taxpayers: "I don't consider that in the same league."

"We are committed to all our election promises over a span of time," Crosbie said. But "quite obviously" some things would have to be ruled out in the short term to avoid an increase in the current $12-billion spending deficit.

He said he considers inflation — now running at close to 10 per cent a year — the "No. 1 problem." To increase spending too rapidly could make inflation worse.

But coming from a province of chronic unemployment, he would ensure that spending restraint doesn't aggravate unemployment.

"If some of our programs have to wait then they're going to have to wait," he said. "I'm not going to be pushed around by anybody."

The ministers, sworn into office Monday, beamed with enthusiasm as they approached the stately Langevin Block — vacated during the weekend by Pierre Trudeau — to meet collectively for the first time.

"Is this the place?" quipped Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander as he entered the sandstone building across Wellington Street from Parliament.

Some of the casually dressed ministers carried umbrellas to ward off a light rain and hesitated to answer specific questions on the policies they hope to implement.

"This is day one," said Small Business Minister Ron Huntingdon. "Give us a few weeks to get a grasp on things."

Two dozen jumbo jets in 3rd grounding order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials, concerned that improper maintenance procedures may have produced a crack and led to the worst air crash in U.S. history, have grounded almost two dozen DC-10s.

The grounding was ordered after similar cracks were discovered in two jets that had gone through the same procedure.

This is the third grounding in a week for some of the jumbo jets.

The board said two American DC-10s had cracks in the aft attachment points of the pylons. A pylon is a structure that holds the engine to the wing.

Investigators found a 25-centimetre crack in the aft attachment point of the pylon that separated from the engine that fell off American's ill-fated Flight 191.

The board said the cracks in the two recently inspected planes were apparently caused when mechanics improperly removed the engine and pylon in one section, instead of two steps. Flight 191 had undergone the same "engine-removal and reinstallation procedure" on March 30, the aviation administration order said.

McDonnell Douglas, maker of the DC-10, specifies in a service bulletin that the engine and pylon should be removed separately.

Ed Slattery, a board spokesman, said it was conceivable the "pre-existing crack" in Flight 191 might have caused the failure of the pylon assembly holding the engine to the wing. But he said he did not think the crack caused the crash and that the safety board has not reached a conclusion on the specific cause of the accident.

Administration spokesman John Leyden said the new grounding order involves only those DC-10s that have had their engine pylons removed and replaced in recent days to comply with inspection orders stemming from the Chicago crash. He estimated less than 20 of the 137 DC-10s in the U.S. will be affected.

Under the order, airlines are urged to inspect all planes which had their engines and pylons removed in one section.

Meanwhile an Associated Press check of U.S. Federal Aviation Administration records shows the problems of cracks and other structural faults were around before the jet age. They are a fact of life in aviation.

Every U.S.-built commercial jetliner has been subject to "airworthiness directives" — government orders for maintenance checks or repairs.

Calder appeals recount

Former Socred MLA Frank Calder will appeal the judicial recount that gave the northern riding of Atlin to New Democrat Al Passarell by one vote.

Calder's lawyer, Blair Johnstone, said Monday that Calder will appeal the result to the B.C. Appeal Court based on three ballots, two of which were awarded to Passarell in the recount and one which was disallowed for Calder.

Calder would win by a two-vote margin if the decision on the three ballots were reversed, said Johnstone.

The appeal probably will be held by the end of this week or early next week so the issue can be resolved quickly, he said.

Winner of recount barred from seat

Premier Bill Bennett, 15 cabinet ministers and 41 backbenchers took the oath of office today in swearing-in ceremonies either at the legislature or at Government House.

The oath was not administered to Al Passarell, the NDP member for Atlin.

Although he won a judicial recount over Socred Frank Calder in the recent election he will not be allowed to sit in the house because Calder has appealed.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett was upset by the decision. "There appears to be confusion over the interpretation of the Elections Act," he said. Barrett says the judge in Prince Rupert who oversaw the recount declared Passarell winner and signed the necessary forms.

But clerk of the house Ian Horne said the list of names of declared winners he received from chief electoral officer Ken Morton contained only 56 names.

Passarell will not be able to sit in the opposition benches when the throne speech is delivered by Lieutant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving Tuesday afternoon.

Bennett writes Clark

Premier Bill Bennett has written Prime Minister Joe Clark expressing B.C.'s concern over the proposed nuclear plant at Sedro Wooley, in northwest Washington.

Bennett would not tell reporters details of his letter saying only that he asked Clark to protect the interests of British Columbians and all Canadians.

"I reminded the prime minister events or projects could take place outside B.C. borders and ask him to take from time to time whatever action may be necessary on a national or international basis." Bennett said.

He was pressed to explain but he replied only he asked the Clark government to look at anything that might of concern to British Columbians and Canadians.

He said British Columbians are fortunate that they are not faced with a nuclear option because of the number of other energy sources.

Sedro Wooley is just east of Anacortes across the straits from Victoria. The nuclear project is waiting final U.S. government approval before construction starts.

'Caretaker Archbishop' set to retire

Egypt, China pact set

ISMAILIA (Reuter) — President Anwar Sadat announced today that Egypt has concluded an arms deal with China, apparently involving a large shipment of Chinese-built MiG planes.

Sadat, adressing members of the armed forces near this Suez canal city, said: "It gives me great pleasure to seize this opportunity to announce to you that China has concluded with us a deal (on arms).

"I have nothing to do but to express in your name (our thanks) to the leadership of China for this deal, for this aid devoid of any ulterior motives."

Sadat gave no details of the deal.

Egypt has already made arms deals with the United States involving Phantom jet fighters and F-5E jet fighters.

Sadat's announcement of the Chinese deal came while he was giving details of how he has overcome the Soviet arms embargo on Egypt imposed because of political differences between Cairo and Moscow.

U.S. Nazis targeted for death

NEW YORK (AP) — Five powerful parcel bombs — all capable of killing or maiming — have been sent to Nazi leaders in four states. And a telephone caller says more are on the way today.

But, unlike the first group, today's bombs "are going to go off," the anonymous caller told The Associated Press on Monday.

The caller, claiming to represent the International Committee Against Nazism, said he told where the bombs were located because "this is only a warning."

When asked for more information, the caller said Monday: "We'll call you tomorrow with new places." He hung up when asked whether he would call before the new bombs exploded.

Monday's caller said bombs were mailed to Nazi leaders in Chicago; Cicero, Ill.; Arlington, Va., and Lincoln, Neb. On Saturday, a person claiming to be from the same group told The AP in a telephone call that a bomb had been sent to Paterson, N.J.

Authorities in each of those communities later confirmed the existence of the potentially lethal packages.

An FBI spokesman in Newark, N.J., said the agency was looking into the incidents — talking to persons who received the parcels and trying to determine who else might get them. He declined to divulge additional details of the investigation.

Each parcel contained similar explosives and detonators, and, in at least three cases, bombs were accompanied by a similarly worded message ending with "Heil Hitler and White Power."

The caller Saturday said a bomb would go to Tscherim Soobzokov, a former Nazi SS officer, in Paterson. Soobzokov received a cigar box-size package containing explosives at his home Friday. The device was detonated by U.S. Army experts.

Soobzokov was cleared by a federal grand jury last month of war-crime charges dating back to the Second World War.

Battles erupt in Nicaragua

MANAGUA (AP) — Gun-battles in the streets and a general strike nearly paralysed Nicaragua's capital as Sandinista guerrillas held most of two northern cities and battled soldiers of President Anastasio Somoza in the south.

The rebels ambushed a national guard convoy a few miles from the centre of Managua. The fierce 45-minute battle was heard in a large part of the city.

No buses and few taxis operated Monday, the first day of the strike, paralysing transportation and making it impossible for most workers to get to their jobs.

The only businesses found open were government offices, branches of banks linked with the government and some gasoline stations.

The guerrillas also have erected barricades in the streets and taken control of the air strip at Leon, Nicaragua's second-largest city about 88 kilometres northwest of the capital.

Heavy tank and armored car fire was heard from the centre of Leon and national guard planes were seen strafing and rocketing the airport area, reporters returning from the city said.

No word has been received since Monday morning from Chichigalpa, 32 kilometres northwest of Leon. A reporter there said most of the city was in rebels hands, with the guard confined to its headquarters.

Barricades were reported in the streets of Diriamba, Diriomo and Jinotepe, major towns southwest of Managua on the way to the Costa Rican border.

A communique said government troops were continuing their assault against positions north of the Costa Rican border held by "the international brigade of Communist mercenaries."

Somoza says the Sandinistas are operating from camps Costa Rica and has threatened to declare war against his southern neighbor if the guerrillas keep up their raids.

But Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carazo said Monday that accusations of guerrilla bases in his country were lies and that there was "no possibility" Nicaraguan troops would invade.

The Sandinistas take their name from a rebel leader who fought the U.S. marines who put Somoza's father into power in the 1930s. They led a two-week rebellion in September in which an estimated 1,500 persons died. Another 1,500 have been killed in clashes since.

Bellybutton's big bucks drop after bargain

The $850,000 malpractice award Virginia O'Hare received for her off-centre bellybutton was reduced Monday to $200,000, according to sources close to the case in New York Lawyers for Mrs. O'Hare, 42, and her plastic surgeon, Dr. Howard Bellin, reached a settlement at a closed-door conference in the chambers of Mr. Justice Alvin Klein in Manhattan's state Supreme Court, the sources said. They said Mrs. O'Hare's lawyer agreed to the settlement to block a planned appeal that might have reduced the award even further or wiped it out.

Triple winner in Monday night's Music City News Cover Awards in Nashville was Kenny Rogers, who cashed in heavily on his hit song The Gambler. Rogers, unable to make the ceremonies because of a performing commitment, was chosen top male vocalist Monday night. The Gambler was selected best single and he shared duet-of-the-year honors with Dottie West. "If I'd have known I'd have won three awards, I'd have cancelled and been there in person," Rogers said from Las Vegas via special hookup to the televised awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House. Barbara Mandrell was selected female artist of the year, breaking Loretta Lynn's 12-year stranglehold on the award. Other than Rogers, the only other act to win more than one award was the Statler Brothers, who were chosen group of the year for the sixth straight year and who won top album honors for Entertainers On and Off the Road. Silver-haired Pee Wee King, an accordionist who wrote the Tennessee Waltz in 1948, won the Founder's Award for long-time contributions to country music. Other winners were: Roy Clark, top musician; the Osborne Brothers, bluegrass group of the year; Eddie Rabbitt, songwriter of the year; Jerry Clower, top comedy act; PBS' Live from the Grand Ole Opry, top television show; Rex Allen Jr., most promising male vocalist.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Donald Coggan, will retire in January, it was announced in London today. The archbishop, spiritual head of the Church of England and the worldwide Anglican Communion with about 65 million members, will be 70 in October. When the biblical scholar was elevated to the See of Canterbury on May 14, 1974, he was dubbed the "caretaker archbishop" because of his age. He is known to want a younger man to become archbishop.

Somehow, the wires got crossed, and when Roberta Peters showed up Monday morning at the Kennedy Centre's Act III restaurant in Washington for an interview in connection with her role in the Met's Don Pasqual, the place was closed. Owner Al Mandaro was there, however, and no one ever ad libbed a better breakfast. Ushering her into the empty restaurant, he prepared a meal just for her, after which the interview went as scheduled. Says The Metropolitan Opera's diva, "I felt just like a queen."

And, finally, Dutch millionaire Pieter Menten, who collapsed last Thursday when told of his impending re-arrest on war crimes charges, has regained consciousness, a prosecutor said Monday in Rotterdam. The 80-year-old diabetic went into a coma at his home and was taken to hospital after police told him of the warrant.

Killer winds lash Acapulco

ACAPULCO (UPI) — Hurricane Andrew, which flooded Acapulco over the weekend and killed two persons, was breaking up today over the rugged hills of the state of Michoacan, the meteorological service said.

Authorities said the coastal road north to Zihuanatejo was closed today to allow government plow trucks to shove aside hundreds of tons of rock and mud that slid onto the highway during the hurricane.

The hurricane was last reported losing power and breaking up over the Michaocan hills northwest of Acapulco.

Andrew, the first Pacific hurricane of the season — Pacific hurricanes are given a different set of names than Atlantic hurricanes — packed winds of 153 kmh and gusts of up to 169 kmh when it lashed the resort city.

Time will tell

Never in recent Canadian history has it been more difficult to assess a newly-appointed federal cabinet at first glance. Only a few of the men named by Prime Minister Joe Clark to his first cabinet are household names. Many are virtually unknown outside their own areas. Who elsewhere, for example, has even ever heard of Jake Epp, John Wise, Perrin Beatty, Robert Howie, Michael Wilson, or Ron Atkey?

This is truly an untried and untested cabinet. It will be several months before the Canadian public will be able to begin to decide on the competence of the individuals Clark has chosen to lead the country.

There are, however, some interesting points to be made about the general principles Clark used in picking the cabinet. First, Clark laid firmly to rest the myth that the May 22 election would show a move towards increasing cabinet power from the west.

Clark named seven men from west of the Lakehead to the cabinet; exactly the same number as in the last Trudeau cabinet. Indeed, B.C. has fewer ministers than it had after the 1974 election.

At that time Trudeau appointed three of eight B.C. Liberal MPs to the cabinet plus Senate leader Ray Perrault. Clark has appointed only three of the 19 Tories elected in B.C.

Saskatchewan and Manitoba each have the same number of ministers they had under the Trudeau government — one — while Alberta now has two compared to its previous one.

The heart of political power remains firmly ensconced in Ontario. Clark has appointed 12 Ontario ministers, just one fewer than Trudeau had.

The difference in regional distribution is evident only in Quebec. Trudeau had nine ministers from his own province. Clark has but four Quebecers, and two of those are senators.

Clark has obviously not yet come close to solving his most worrisome problem — the need to develop credible, strong representation in Quebec. The two senators he has named — Jacques Flynn and Martial Asseltin — both served briefly in the Diefenbaker cabinet, but neither is well-known, even in Quebec. Nor can either be considered a strong voice for the interests of the Quebecois in a government dominated by English-speaking Canadians.

Clark has said he remains open to the possibility of expanding the cabinet with future Quebec appointees to the Senate. He needs to find Quebecers of much greater stature before he can consider his group a representative national cabinet.

Clark appointed only one individual directly into the cabinet, saying he would be appointed a senator later. That was Robert de Cotret, the economist who had been widely predicted as the most probable choice for finance minister, before being defeated in his Ottawa riding.

John Diefenbaker, among others, has already criticized this move, and it leaves Clark open to the accusation of ignoring the voters' judgment and substituting his own. Although there is no doubt of de Cotret's talents, his effectiveness may be diminished by his political failure.

The other matter of interest is the complicated bureaucratic structure Clark has chosen for his cabinet. He has first divided the cabinet into an inner and an outer circle, leaving only 11 of his 29 ministers with responsibility for over-all government planning. He has then set up five new sub-committees of cabinet, each responsible for a special area such as economic affairs or government efficiency.

This complex structure may well be essential to Clark's program of decentralized decision-making. It may be a way to avoid the one-man government typified by Trudeau's administration.

It may also, however, be a structure that lends itself to procrastination, buck-passing, and fragmentation of government policy. As with the individuals appointed to the cabinet, only time will tell.

The west's tomorrow power

OTTAWA — Since 1872, a practice started by Lord Dufferin and interrupted only during the '20s and '30s because the plumbing had deteriorated, Governors-General have spent part of their summers at their second official residence, the Citadel in Quebec City.

Next year, Governor-General Edward Schreyer will spend a week or so at a new, semi-official residence, the restored 150-year-old Hudson's Bay trading post in Lower Fort Garry National Park just south of Winnipeg.

It's a nice gesture — a Manitoban Governor-General bringing the pomp and prestige of his office to his home province for a short stay. If the election hadn't fouled up his schedule, Schreyer would have gone to Lower Fort Garry this summer.

It's also a nice comment about Canada today. Prestige and pomp are moving west in the after-tow of economic power.

A double first

On Monday, a double-first was entered into the history books. Our first western-born Prime Miniter, Joe Clark, was installed into office by our first western Governor-General, Schreyer. Things will never quite be the same again.

In Maclean's magazine, Allan Fotherinham writes of the arrival in Ottawa of "Hunkie Power". It is true that the new cabinet will contain more "ski" ending names than ever before. Yet most of those with clout still will carry familiar names — Stevens, Crosbie, Baker, MacDonald (hers and his), Fraser, Lawrence, Crombie, McKinnon, Wise and Clark.

An apter phrase to describe what's going on might be "Tomorrow Power." It is the time, or it is the beginning of the time at least, of Tomorrow Country, a tag-phrase that once applied just to Alberta but which today encompasses Saskatchewan (uranium, potash, heavy oils, wheat) and British Columbia (just about everything, plus rain).

The general character of Canada's westwards tilt is pretty familiar. In 1977, the population of the western provinces exceeded that of Quebec for the first time. In the past decade, the west's economic output has soared from 60 per cent of Ontario's level [illegible] per cent today, and could move ahead by the mid-'90s.

A less well-known, but perhaps a more crucial point about the west-east relationship has been made by Conference Board in Canada staffer Peter Gusen. Western Canada has developed a virtual immunity to eastern business cycles, said Gusen. He remarked that the trade ties between Canada West and Canada East probably are more tenuous (oil this way, some manufactured goods that way), than those between Canada and the U.S.

Simply put, the west no longer needs the east. Once, the east supplied the west with everything from finance (all those Bay Street bankers that westerners love to hate) to fish (Maritime salt fish, during the Depression). Today, the west can get all it needs from whomever it sells its resources to, and increasingly does so.

Rather than the Ottawa River, the national dividing line that matters now is, in psychological terms, the Ontario-Manitoba border, or, in economic terms, the Manitoba-Saskatchewan one.

The Clark crowd, particularly westerners such as Don Mazankowski and Ray Hnatyshyn and John Fraser, as well as Schreyer down at Rideau Hall, thus all will have to play two roles.

They will represent the west at the centre. More important perhaps, precisely because the west is so self-contained, they will represent the interests of the centre to the west.

For those roles to be realized, two changes will have to happen.

The Clark crowd will have to make Ottawa, the city and the government, a place where westerners feel at home, just as Pierre Trudeau has made it a place where Quebecers could feel "chez eux."

Adroitly, Clark has recognized that style can matter as much as substance here. He has set a populist tone by gestures such as switching from Trudeau's $85,000, armour-plated Cadillac to an anonymous Chev Impala.

More substantively, Clark is in earnest about running an open government. He's anxious to "Mao-tse-tung" the civil servants, that is get them out to meet the people they deal with. He's determined that his cabinet ministers will practise what he calls small P politics, that is people politics.

National responsibility

If Ottawa opens up, so will the west have to do so in return. The shift of economic power and the elevtion result have thrust, for the first time, national responsibility upon the west.

Until now, westerners have enjoyed being able to complain about being left out. Western political leaders — Saskatchewan's Allan Blakeney is the striking exception — seldom hve raised their sights beyond their own back forty.

Between Clark and Schreyer there's a certain edginess because Trudeau appointed Schreyer, an ex-NDP premier, at a time when a Liberal-NDP minority government was a real possibility. Now they're following the same path: about the time Schreyer gets to Lower Fort Garry, Clark hopes to have opened, in Jasper, the first, semi-official, western cabinet chamber. Both are giving a new meaning to old phrase, "a national government".

A recent column described Privy Council Clerk Michael Pitfield as having advised Trudeau during his 1967-68 campaign for the Liberal leadership. Pitfield denies that he did this. I accept his denial, and correct the record.

This is a trial about prisons

NEW YORK — A trial going forward in Ulster County, New York, shows once again how hard it is for prison inmates to get consideration of their grievances without resort to methods more likely to bring prosecution than redress — a sort of Catch-22 behind bars.

The defendant is Felix Castro, a 32-year-old Puerto Rican charged with first degree rioting, attempted coercion and unlawful imprisonment — charges stemming from events at the Eastern New York Correctional Facility at Napanoch on Aug. 8, 1977. On that steamy day, with the temperature reaching 100 degrees, inmates of Cellblock B-3, enraged by a breakfast of spoiled eggs, rioted, seized control of part of the prison and held 11 hostages for about 12 hours.

Anti-Klan group

A primary reason for this uprising was a history of Ku Klux Klan activity at Napanoch; in fact, a Grand Dragon of the New York chapter of the Independent Northern Klans, Earl Schoonmaker, once was a $14,200-a-year teacher at the prison. Klan activity among New York prison guards had become troublesome enough by 1975 that former Commissioner Ben Ward of the Corrections Department forbid correctional employees to join the KKK.

Inmates apparently saw little evidence that this ban was being enforced. At Napanoch — where well over half the 600 inmates were black or hispanic — they formed the John Brown Anti-Klan Committee and in June 1977, released a press packet in which they named 35 guards as alleged Klan members or sympathizers. When the riot followed in August, one of the inmates' specific demands was for the transfer of two sergeants they accused of Klan membership, and of brutality.

Another demand was for an investigation of conditions at Napanoch, including food service. When such an inquiry later was conducted, investigators discovered food supplies infested and contaminated by rats, flies, roaches and other vermin. Through regular "grievance" procedures, inmates had persistently complained before the riot, but nothing was done until after the uprising.

None of the hostages was harmed during their captivity. Inmates instigated negotiations with the authorities by releasing a hostage; and to show inmate good faith during negotiations, four more were released even before agreement was reached. This gesture, testimony shows, came at the suggestion of Felix Castro, a respected inmate leader who was head of a group called Latinos Unitos.

Such inmates are almost always regarded as "troublemakers" by guards. Yet, testimony also shows that Castro was in his cell in "keeplock" when the August 8 revolt began; that he was relesed 45 minutes later by other inmates; and that he was not seen to assault anyone, damage property or carry a weapon — despite the fact that he, unlike many of the inmates, did not wear a mask during the uprising. He was elected by the others as one of four negotiatiors and was placed in charge of the hostages until their release.

Nearly two years later, having already served six months in solitary and lost a year's "good time," Felix Castro is being tried on three Class E charges, the least serious felony category. They could bring him perhaps a four-year sentence — except that if found guilty it would be his third felony conviction. So the prosecution has demanded that he be sentenced under New York's Persistent Felon law, which could mean 25 years to life imprisonment.

It might be thought that mitigating circumstances would prevent such an outcome But Judge John J. Clyne is trying the case solely on the events of Aug. 8, 1977. So far, he has not permitted the defence to raise issues concerning prison conditions at the time or the alleged Klan presence at Napanoch; nor was the defence allowed to question prospective jurors about Klan sympathies.

All-white jury

The prosecution eliminated the two black members of the jury panel and three younger persons by peremptory challenges; there were no hispanic panel members. As a result, Castro is being tried by an all-white jury the average age of which is more than 50 years, in the same county where the uprising took place, and where prison employees — including some of those taken hostage — are widely known. Nine other inmates ultimately will face about the same charges in Ulster County court.

The brief disorders at Napanoch in 1977 were unlike the more famous 1971 uprising at Attica; no deaths and no serious injuries occurred at Napanoch, and negotiations between inmates and state authorities were successful in ending the revolt. But the two events are painfully similar in origin, since in both legitimate inmate grievances were ignored until violence and disorder forced at least minimal action.

One-sided and vindictive prosecution of inmates followed the Attica riots, while nothing was done to bring to justice the state policemen who killed 29 inmates and 10 hostages with indiscriminate gunfire. It would be too bad if events show that the Napanoch defendants received the same kind of treatment — particularly since New York's highest court ruled last April that prison guards may not be forbidden to join the Ku Klux Klan.

Oak Bay Manor

In regards to the government's recent decision to close Oak Bay Manor's long term care unit, we the nursing staff and the residents of the Manor are appalled, disgusted and sickened at the prospect of such an idea.

With respect to the incidents which occurences at the Manor. We do, however, feel that the decision to refuse renewal of the Manor's long term care facility's license is harsh, to put it mildly.

Conclusions have also been made that the staff is "inadequate". Are we to understand that we are incapable of carrying out our duties? If it is so, then surely a recommendation to hire more staff would be in order, but inadequate here seems to be synomymous with incompetent, thus the recent decision. We, the staff, are not amused; in fact, we do consider the statement slanderous.

Have you ever been to Oak Bay Manor to observe our daily methods of operation? We fail to understand how a decision can be reached about a subject which has not been observed. We reiterate that the incidents were isolated ones.

The staff here at the manor are very sensitive to the needs of the residents. We do treat them with respect and offer them the best service we are capable of rendering.

If the commission feels that changes can be made for the bettering of the services to be offered, why not make recommendations to be carried out within a certain period?

The 137 residents the government wants removed from the Manor are in fact very upset by the said decision. There is visible evidence of this since most of them are becoming physically ill — nausea, loss of appetite, etc. . . The places to which they will be sent are already overcrowded, so what improvements will there be in sending them into already overcrowded homes?

Has the government attempted to interview the residents and their families? Perhaps some attempt of this sort should be made.

It seems quite heartless to put senior citizens through the trauma of hearing that they will be put out of their homes. They regard the Manor as such, for the second time. Many of them have voiced the feeling of rejection, uselessness and a feeling of being in the way again. We beg of you, please consider their feelings in this matter.

The effects on the staff; we will be put out of jobs, thus joining the ranks of the unemployed like how many others in this province? We too have families to support. Consider what it will do to us as individuals.

We are the people that helped vote the government into power just a few days ago, it's like biting the hand that feeds you.

We, the staff and residents, feel that the decision ought to be reviewed. Consequently we are asking that steps be taken to do so, fairly and quickly. — Signed by 32 staff members and residents, Oak Bay Manor.

(Editor's note: since this letter was written, the government has allowed Oak Bay Manor to continue to operate as a long-term care facility, pending its appeal of the shutdown ruling.)

System too lax

I am concerned over the comments of John Young, a school trustee concerned over the school suspensions. I am concerned with this problem too, only in a different way.

As a parent of teenagers I find it most difficult to raise and control them when the schools are so lax. I say if my child has done something the principals can no longer tolerate, then out he or she goes. After all there is nothing else left for them to do; all the other punishments have been taken away and the kids aren't scared of the schools, parents or police. As this is what has been taught in the schools in the last two years, what do you expect.

I feel sorry for the future parent trying to raise good kids when people like Mr. Young want to make it easier. These kids know they are doing wrong but have the attitude, "what the heck — they can't do anything with me."

I am proud of the way I was taught in school to respect older people, parents and someone else's property and try to teach my children the same, but it is most frustrating when the system is so lax.

I feel there must be lots of parents concerned and upset trying to raise their children, and would like to hear from those that feel the same. — Mrs. F. Cammiade, 119 Helmcken Road.

Another election for weary Europe

By NORMAN WEBSTER

BRUSSELS — Canadians weary of politics should spare a tear for the poor Europeans. After general elections in Belgium, state elections in Germany, local elections in France, referendums in Switzerland, govenment collapse in Italy — and almost all of these in Great Britain — comes now a pan-European election to tax the patience still further.

This latest in campaigns is for direct elections to the Parliament of Europe. And if you don't know what that is, then you're no more ignorant than many of the voters who are being urged to make yet another trip to the polling booths.

Which is not to say the matter is unimportant. This will be the largest democratic exercise in Western history.

From June 7 to 10, an electorate of more than 180 million will be eligible to vote in the nine countries of the European community — West Germany, France, Italy, Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark and Ireland.

The vision has faded since the heady early days of the treaty of Rome. The large blunt obstacle known as Charles de Gaulle, the antagonistic stance of British Labor governments, the deeply rooted cultures of the continent — not to mention the practical difficulties of six (so far) official languages — have lowered expectations.

What we have now, and likely will continue to have, is not a U.S. of E., but a European Community. This may be a more modest achievement, but still a formidable one.

The community, or common market, is an economic giant within which goods and services, capital and labor move with relative freedom.

Agreements on trade, energy, science, health and matters environmental and social are administered by the community's bureaucracy, the Commission, which is watched by the European Parliament.

It is a true Parliament in name only, for it has no real legislative powers. These have been jealously reserved by national govenments and legislatures.

It does, though, have the important task of scrutiny. It has a range of committees which examine the work of the Commission, and it influences the size and direction of the community budget.

In the last resort, it can both fire the entire Commission and reject the community budget, though these are powers so sweeping they have never been used.

The real power of decision in the community resides with the council of ministers — the national governments in conclave — and the council shows no signs of giving that up to the Parliament.

Still, officials here think direct elections represent an important milestone in the evolution of the community. "They will let people act for the first time as community citizens and have a direct link with its decision-making," says Roy Pryce, a senior adviser.

Pryce thinks the new Parliament will use its powers more vigorously. He sees it becoming a watchdog roughly similar to the U.S. Congress in the way it scrutinizes the community's executive and spending.

Its influence will depend, obviously, on the quality of the people elected. Some well-known figures are running, among them former German chancellor Willy Brandt, former Belgian premier Leo Tindemans, Italian Communist chief Enrico Berlinguer, Jacques Chirac and Francois Mitterand, the Gaullist and Socialist leaders in France, Ulster's Rev. Ian Paisley and former Labor cabinet minister Barbara Castle.

Some are running only to make sure the Parliament's wings stay clipped so it doesn't infringe on national sovereignty. Chirac is one. So are many of the candidates put up by the British Labor Party.

Labor's ambiguous attitude cost it more than $20,000 recently. Its original manifesto for the elections carried the title Labor for Europe. Horrors. Unhappy anti-market candidates insisted this be scrapped and a new manifesto was printed with the title Labor Will Fight for You in Europe.

There have been tentative attempts to link parties into European groups crossing national lines — Christian Democrats, Socialists, Conservatives, Liberals, Communists — but these alliances mean little. The elections are being fought in national contexts.

There is no real pan-European debate even on such major issues as agriculture, energy, nuclear power, multinational corporations and unions.

Election procedures are nationally determined, too. In eight countries, this means forms of proportional representation. In Britain, it means separate constituencies and first-past-the-post. The British constituencies will be huge, averaging about 500,000 voters. (Three Northern Island seats will be awarded by proportional representation, to give the Catholic minority a chance.)

The main problem for all candidates will be getting voters out. Expensive publicity campaigns are trying to whip up interest, but the turnout for Europe is expected to be low — especially in Italy, and Britain, where a recent poll found that 38 per cent of the people had never even heard of the European Parliament.

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The capacity of the North American continent not to admit that there is an oil crisis could make the crisis a lot worse a lot more quickly.

The Petroleum Economist, published in London and one of the most respected voices on the oil world, was flat about the subject in its May issue. Official oil prices, it explained, had zoomed between December and the end of April. The world's largest exporter, Saudi Arabia, has consciously exercised restraint by holding its increases since the end of 1978 around the 14 per cent mark. Other exporters have not been so kind. Their official increases have ranked from around 23 per cent (Venezuela) to above 33 (Libya), with the per-barrel price ranging from Saudi Arabia's $13.64 to Algeria's $18.55.

These are the official price increases; and, as the Economist says, "A range of almost $5 a barrel in official prices is unprecedented." The prices in the spot, or scalpers' markets are much higher — reaching $33 a barrel in some cases — and some governments in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries "have been seeking to channel more of their oil into spot market outlets. They have, indeed, become the main source of supply for these markets." And OPEC will consider an official upward revision next month.

What will be the effect of these vaulting prices? Dampening on Western economies; "first," as the Economist says, "by putting up industrial costs and reducing the amount of purchasing power available to spend on other things." But it is more complex than that.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia has warned the industrial nations that, oil being a finite resource, they have a duty to reduce their oil demands by conservation and by developing alternative energy sources. The 20 member governments of the International Energy Agency have promised to do something about his demands, and the Europeans have. The United States, which accounts for about half the economies pledged by the IEA, to which it belongs, has not been gripped with the necessity.

It could not be said, either, that Canadians or their governments have really grasped the need to conserve or to develop with speed their undoubted energy resources.

Existing oil prices may hasten a recession that may already be on the way, particularly in the united States. But if Saudi Arabia stops being the moderate, oil prices could be through the roof. The word then could be depression, not recession.

"So," says the Petroleum Economist, "the Western world is presented with clearly defined alternatives: either we cut oil consumption as a matter of policy or we face another sharp rise in prices which will forcibly reduce our call on OPEC resources. In the end it is the Saudi Arabian government who will decide whether or not we have given a convincing demonstration of our determination to reduce western dependence on oil . . . if Sheik Yamani finds Western conservation efforts unconvincing he may well throw moderation to the winds and take his stand with the hawks. We cannot say that we have not been warned."

No, we can't. But have Canadians any more than Americans, heeded the warning?

An electoral system that doesn't work any more

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — The election results demonstrate once again that our system of choosing a government is not only undemocratic but also downright dangerous.

We have as prime minister the head of a party for which only about a third of Canadians voted — the second party in terms of national support. And we have a House of Commons divided along lines of language and region much more sharply than ever the voters intended.

The change of government, in fact, owes more to the accidents of the electoral system than it does to any expression of national will.

In 1972, the Liberals won 38.5 per cent of the vote and formed a government. This time they got 40 per cent and went into opposition. The Tories got 35 per cent in 1972 and again in 1974, losing both times. This time they edged up just one point to 36 per cent and won, we are told, a great victory.

That's bad enough, but the regional results are worse in the way in which they divide the country.

The Liberals are said to be wiped out in the West and no longer a national party. In terms of seats in the House of Commons, that's about right: Only two out of 77 west of Ontario. But actually about 20 per cent of Westerners voted Liberal.

In forming his cabinet, Joe Clark faced a dreadful problem because only two Conservatives were elected in Quebec's 75 seats and one of those is an anglophone. But Tory candidates won about 13 per cent of the vote in the province and if representations in Parliament were in proportion to popular support, would have 10 seats.

The New Democratic Party, to take another example of the absurdity of the system, won about 20 per cent of the vote in Ontario, the industrial heartland of the country, with the support of the Canadian Labor Congress. But instead of getting 20 per cent of the province's seats in the Commons — 19 — it won a mere six.

Who could blame union members if they feel they do not have a fair share of influence in national decision-making?

The solution to the problems of the system is simple but not easy. It's simple because the Task Force on Canadian Unity in its recent report, NDP leader Ed Broadbent and others, have already proposed schemes which would relate the election of MPs more closely to the support obtained by each party in each region of the country.

The task force chaired by Liberal Jean-Luc Pepin and Tory John Robarts, and representatives of other political and regional interests, pointed to the dangerously divisive results of the system, and suggested adding 60 MPs who would be chosen from lists supplied by the parties, to correct the imbalances of the present method of election. The Liberals, for example, would get more members in the West, the Tories would get more in Quebec, and the NDP more in Ontario.

Broadbent would go a little farther and add 100 members to correct imbalances. Other authorities have suggested different systems of proportional representation, pointing out that Canada is one of the very few democracies not using some form of proportional representation to elect a representative government.

It's not an easy solution, however, because governments which get elected by our existing unfair system are never anxious to change it. After all, the system worked to put them in power, so why take a chance on a new system which might favor the other parties?

So Prime Minister Clark and the Tories won't be too eager for reform. But possibly, just possibly, they can in this Parliament be pushed into action. The Liberals, the New Democrats, and the Social Credit parties all now have something to gain from changing the system of election to some form of proportional representation.

If they act together, they can probaably push the minority government into action before the next election and earn the thanks of the country, which is ill-served by the existing system.

Pillowed as in Araby

NEW YORK — Apartment hunters in New York quickly learn about the Arabs. Agents show two bedrooms and rusty plumbing and say, "This one's only $250,000." Isn't that a little steep? "It's the Arabs," is the reply.

You prefer something in a modest town house? Well, it's not so wide as a church door, and it does need $150,000 in work to put it in livable shape, but it's a steal at $450,000.

"Four hundred and fifty thousand dollars?"

"It's the Arabs."

What Arabs are these who are moving into Manhattan in such multitudes, with such wealth that no one not of Islam can afford to compete for a little place where he may call the cockroaches his own?

You can walk the sidewalks of New York for weeks without seeing a single person in desert-robes. Some of these profligate Arabs, admittedly, may go abroad in Western dress, but you can move through layers of New York society for a year without meeting more than two or three persons whose names have the Arabic ring.

* * *

You do not have to be a close observer of metropolitan life to realize that New York is not a big Arab town. Perhaps, then, the Arabs who are driving up real estate prices are based elsewhere. In London, maybe. Everyone returning fron London reports the Arabs have moved in lock, stock and oil dividends. Conceivably, vast hordes of Arabs in London are bidding absurd prices for real estate in New York with intent to drive New Yorkers out. Conceivably, but not likely.

If you were an Arab in London, why would you spend $250,000 for two bedrooms and rusty plumbing astride six potholes and an all-night fire-engine route when, for the same amount, you could take the children skiing in Switzerland and have enough change left over to buy a ghost town in Nevada?

If pressed on this point, persons wise in New York real estate will admit it isn't the Arabs who are inflating prices. It's the rich Italians.

All the rich Italians, according to this theory, are in terror of being kidnapped by their domestic kidnapping industry, or marked for death by the Red Brigades, or forced by the government to pay income taxes. And so, they are buying housing in New York to which they can flee in a crisis.

When, however, you visit these apartments and houses, the market price of which might have made Midas blanch, the only Italians one meets are the grandchildren of parents who emigrated in 1910 and who are, in fact, Americans. The people who inhabit them are the same people who spend Saturday afternoons in East Side shops buying pillows shaped like Count Draculas and dyes that make toilet tanks flush blue water.

If not rich Italian, then who? Greek shipowners. Everybody knows Greek shipowners are richer than Midas and Croesus combined. Greek shipowners are richer than Great Britain.

"It's Greek shipowners," goes the explanation, ignoring the fact that any Greek shipowner worthy of his calling is unlikely to spend $450,000 for a row house not so wide as a church door when he has the wealth to buy either the Parthenon or Rio de Janeiro, or both if he is in a whimsical mood.

* * *

In any case, there are only five Greek shipowners. Their demand for Manhattan real estate cannot be sufficient to drive the price of two bedrooms and rusty plumbing to $250,000, unless they are plotting to buy up New York and convert it into a drydock, which seems improbable in view of Greek shipowners' distaste for exposing their wealth to American tax collectors.

Nor will it do for somebody to say, "It's the Nazis." We all know from best-sellers, movies and television that Nazis live for ever and have huge hidden fortunes, the undiscovered loot of Hitler's Reich at their disposal. True, but while Nazis live forever, they also age. Almost all Nazis are now beyond retirement age. As senior-citizen Nazis, they are not likely to choose Manhattan as their home for the golden years. The climate is hard on rheumatism and survival is to the fleet of foot. If the Nazis wanted to drive up real-estate prices, they would do it in Arizona or Argentina.

In any case, Nazis are not the kind of people to call attention to themselves by buying pillows shaped like Count Dracula. If a Nazi wanted a pillow shaped like Count Dracula he would buy the raw materials and make one in the privacy of his home where nobody could find out what he was up to. It might take a lot of time, but Nazis are exceedingly patient.

* * *

Who is left? Not the Canadians. People who elect a prime minister named Joe Clark are not the sort to pay $450,000 to live on an all-night fire-engine route.

The answer, obviously, is that it's not the Arabs, nor the rich Italians, not the Greek shipowners, not the Nazis, but the people who buy pillows shaped like Count Dracula. What curious people are these? New Yorkers. Where do they get their fantastic wealth? They borrow it.

Will they not be sorry when the notes come due? No, because they believe that something will turn up and, in the meantime, they have lived like Arabs and languished on pillows shaped like Count Dracula.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was mixed in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in shares of Multiple Access Ltd. was halted at the opening at the company's request pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $8.

Trading in shares of Canadian Long Island Petroleum Ltd. was halted at 1:40 p.m. at the company's request pending an announcement. The stock last traded at 99 cents.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said subdivided shares of Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. will be posted for trading without nominal or par value at the opening Monday, replacing the currently listed shares. Shareholders approved a two-for-one split on May 4.

Subdivided common shares of S. B. McLaughlin Associates Ltd. will be posted for trading without par value at the opening Wednesday, replacing the currently listed shares. Also posted will be new 10-per-cent cumulative redeemable second preferred shares, par value $2.00 each. Shareholders on May 30 approved the subdividing of each common share into one new common share and one-fifth of a second preferred share.

Among other industrials, Gulf Canada fell 2¾ to 54¼, Dome Petroleum 1⅞ to $45⅛, Texaco Canada 1¾ to $67½, Asbestos Corp. 1¼ to $42½ and Home Oil A 1¼ to $63¼.

Westburne International rose 1½ to $48¾, CAE Industries A 1½ to $31½, Falconbridge Nickel A 1¼ to $60, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas ⅝ to $66¼ and Brascan A ½ to $24⅞.

Camflo Mines was down ½ to $13⅞, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ¼ to $19¾ and Dome Mines ¼ to $46½. McIntyre Mines was up ⅝ to $45⅞ and Dickenson Mines ½ to $8½.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum declined 1⅛ to $18⅞, Canadian Superior Oil ¾ to $130¾ and Ulster Petroleums 10 cents to $4.45. Worldwide Energy advanced 1 to $9⅜ and Total Petroleum North America ¾ to $27⅞.

New York

Standard Oil of Ohio gained 1⅞ to $56⅜. It said it plans to acquire Webb Resources and Newco Exploration, Denver-based oil and gas firms.

Tesoro Petroleum rose ¾ to $13¾. Spokesman Mike MacDonald said "apparently there is a considerable institutional interest" in the company's shares.

Charter was up ⅛ to $20¼. It is reducing its share of the Bahamian refinery it acquired last month from 65 per cent to 50 per cent. Standard Oil of California, which gained ⅞ to $46⅝ will raise its stake in the plant from 35 per cent to 50 per cent.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — The London stock market fell moderately near the close of trading today. The Financial Times index was down 3.0 to 507.9. Industrials declined but golds, oils and banks advanced. Canadian shares eased.

CIL moves more staff

MONTREAL (UPC) — Canadian Industries Ltd. will transfer 87 employees from its Montreal head office to Toronto by Sept. 1, bringing the total number of relocated staff to 300 since 1977.

The move will reduce the company's accounting, purchasing, treasury, computer systems and sulphur products units in Montreal.

A company spokesman said it does not represent a gradual effort to relocate the CIL headquarters. However, "if it should become clear that such a (head office) move would be in the interests of its customers, shareholders and employees," the company would not hesitate to leave Quebec.

Simpson-Sears

Simpsons-Sears Ltd. reports earnings of $4,726,000 or six cents a share for the first-quarter ending May 2 compared with $4,517,000 and six cents a share for the same period last year. Last year's figures have been adjusted to a new fiscal year. The company said sales in the period increased seven per cent over last year and are expected to remain favorable for the year.

Provincial Bank

The Provincial Bank reports after-tax balance of revenue for the six months ended April 30, 1979, was up 26 per cent to $10.5 million, or $1.15 a share, from $8.3 million, or $1.10 a share for the same period last year. Assets for 1979 totalled $5.3 billion, or a 18.5 per cent increase from $4.5 billion in 1978. The bank attributed the growth to "an upswing in business loans in Canadian and foreign currencies as well as rising consumer loans. "Also noteworthy are the tax-free investments made at the end of the last financial year," the bank said. Second quarter revenue amounted to $4.6 million, up from $4.0 million for the 1978 period.

Recognize Christian rights, Pope pleads

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II demanded today that Poland's Communist government recognize the rights and beliefs of Christians although their view of the world is "diametrically opposed" to Marxism.

It was the most powerful political statement the pontiff has made in the four days he has been in his homeland.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a closed meeting of Poland's Roman Catholic bishops, the Pope described religious freedom as a fundamental human right and declared that guarantees of religious freedom in Poland's constitution and other documents are meaningful only if they consider "the real needs of the church."

The Pope asserted the church's readiness to enter into a dialogue with the government for normalization of church-state relations.

"Authentic dialogue must respect the convictions of believers, insure all the rights of citizens and also the normal conditions for the activity of the church as a religious community to which the vast majority of Poles belong," he said.

"We are aware that this dialogue cannot be easy because it takes place between two concepts of the world which are diametrically opposed, but it must be possible and effective if the good of individuals and the nation demands it."

The text of the speech was released to journalists early today but was withdrawn soon after without explanation. A Vatican spokesman said later that the Pope wanted bishops to hear it first before the speech was made public.

Before meeting with the bishops the Pope celebrated an open-air Mass for thousands of Polish nuns and said that even "the biggest enemy of the Church" could not help but appreciate their dedication.

Poles began gathering at dawn on the hillside below the country's most-revered shrine.

The pontiff, beginning the fourth day of his return to his homeland, looked at the rows of black-gowned nuns and told them their calling is an "exceptional treasure."

He recalled a visit he once made to a home for sick children in his home town of Wadowice and said even "the biggest enemy of the Church would never forget the dedication of the nuns."

Cablevision rate boost

Service from Saanich Cablevison Ltd. is going to cost more.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telcommunications Commission has approved in part the company's application to increase the monthly subscription fee in the area encompassing Sidney, North and Central Saanich by $1 to $7.

A partial increase to $6.50 is effective immediately, with a further 25 cents a month to be added when the cable service is augmented.

The commission approved a $10 rise in installation charge to $25.

$500,000 sat 18 days in mail

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — The post office says it is not its fault that it took 18 days to deliver a cheque for $572,024.

The post office told the city that it took 18 days last February to deliver the cheque because it was placed in a 19 cm-by-25 cm (7½ inch-by-10 inch) envelope and bore third-class postage.

The city had asked the post office to pay it $3,700, the amount the municipality said it lost as a result of poor postal service.

The city said it lost $3,700 in interest which would have accrued if the cheque from the Ontario environment ministry had been received within a reasonable time.

Ald. Dave Neumann told council that a Brantford man received a letter from the Queen which was mailed at Buckingham Palace on May 30 and arrived in Brantford May 31.

"The mails can do it," said Neumann. "All you have to do is have the right stamp."

No cabinet RCMP control

MONTREAL (CP) — Federal cabinet ministers have virtually no control over the RCMP security service because of the shroud of secrecy surrounding its operations, an independent report says.

The report, released today by the Institute for Research on Public Policy, which draws its funding from both private sources and government, was prepared by a McGill University management professor, Richard French, and one of his students, Andre Beliveau.

French told a news conference it was fruitless to pin responsibility for such operations as an illegal break-in or a barn burning on individual Mounties.

Their excesses resulted from an alarming breakdown in lines of authority within the RCMP, and from the federal government's failure to provide coherent policies for the force, he said.

Ottawa RCMP headquarters and the solictor-general's office lost control over field officers in Montreal who, for lack of guidance, took matters into their own hands after the 1970 October Crisis, the report says.

"In an attempt to avoid undue political interference, the RCMP has failed to estabish links within the bureaucracy ... and has repeatedly avoided close co-operation with its own ministers, to a point where the notion of ministerial responsibility has become essentially meaningless."

Strike vote set for bus drivers

B.C. Hydro bus drivers in Victoria and Vancouver will be taking a strike vote next month to back up their contract demands.

The vote by the 2,000 drivers will be taken July 9 in Vancouver and the following day in Victoria.

Jim Daley, vice-president of the Amalgamated Transit Union, said today the vote is being taken because Hydro's wage offer is not good enough and a number of other management demands are unsatisfactory.

He said aside from the money issue, Hydro wants to have 20 per cent of its drivers working part-time. There are no part-time drivers now.

Hydro also wants to reduce the crew on its Lower Mainland freight railroad, he added.

Daley said the company wants a two-year agreement but the drivers want a 10-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract.

The current agreement expired March 31.

Talks between the parties have broken off and none is scheduled, Daley said. No mediator has been involved to this point.

Port Hardy awaits rush with mixed emotions

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Near the northern tip of Vancouver Island lies a quiet community of 4,000 which spends a good part of the year under a blanket of fog.

Port Hardy is a peaceful town, surrounded by heavily-treed hills. The residents are close, working on projects like the conversion of a church into a public library.

For most of the 500 people who watched the ceremony that accompanied Premier Bill Bennett's opening of the new $3 million ferry terminal at nearby Bear Cove, last Thursday was a big day.

A school band played with gusto and 700 box lunches were devoured by school children. Adults, meanwhile, polished off mounds of sandwiches and other goodies, provided by B.C. Ferries.

But in the midst of all the celebrations there were those who came to watch what they believe is the end of their way of life. Port Hardy's economy is based on the Utah copper mine, logging and fishing.

While Mayor Brian Welshman welcomed the ferry terminal and the connecting highway, claiming it means a new dimension in transportation and tourism, there are those who dread the change.

He says Port Hardy is already threatened by the "professional transients" who work long enough at the mine to make a bundle and then move on.

He said Port Hardy had its first bank robbery a few days ago and its first two rape cases in the past year.

He says when Port Hardy grows, as is inevitable, the close ties that bind him and his neighbors will be gone.

"My feelings are a little bit mixed," he says. "I question whether the change is for the better."

Teacher Mike Rippigale also is dubious about the future. He questions whether his community will benefit from the impact of the new highway and terminal link.

"It's a moot point," he said.

The new highway opens up an area in which the B.C. Development Corporation owns about 170 acres. The remainder is mostly Crown land and is zoned industrially.

BCDC spokesman Bill Bolin of Vancouver said the corporation is already negotiating with Port Hardy municipality on the expensive project of having water piped in to support the industry that will come.

Bolin said it is expected that individual water-oriented developments will take place along the shoreline, the first of which could be a fish processing plant that could be in operation by next year.

The land abutting the new highway is mostly Crown land. Port Hardy's community plan allows for heavy industrial development.

Bolin said a combination of BCDC and Crown land could be used for the developments.

In anticipation of the invasion of people such development will bring and the tourists the new ferry link will draw, a K and R shopping mall is being planned and some residents say The Bay is also considering moving in.

TOWN TALK

Saanich council has appointed three aldermen, Irene Block, Fred Severson and David Paterson, to a special sub-committee which will consider how to control rowdy beach parties in the municipality.

A source close to the committee denies suggestions that beach-blanket stars Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello will be invited to serve as special consultants.

Gas shortages in the U.S., coupled with news that ferry line-ups to the B.C. mainland are expected to reach record highs, will undoubtedly encourage more Vancouver Islanders to stay put.

If that's the holiday outlook for your family, check out the detailed map of Vancouver Island produced by the Surveys and Mapping branch of the Ministry of Environment.

The island is bigger and more complex than even most of its own residents believe.

The full color geographic map covers all communities, major highways and all access roads and trails, plus all rivers, creeks and lakes.

The scale is six miles to the inch and the over-all size of the map is 70 cm. by 107 cm.

Last week marked the retirement of Times cameraman Irving Strickland after nearly 56 years of continuous employment, mostly as a photographer. We said we thought that might be a record term for a photographer on a single paper.

But a reader dropped us a line quoting the April 3 St. John's, Nfld., Evening Telegram, with the story of Walter Churchill, who began working on that paper in the press room when he was 14 and is still there after 63½ years.

Now that's devotion.

Most Americans tour Canada by car but not Gary W. Harvey, 29, of Gloucester, Mass., and Jeff Babcock, 22, of Denver, Colo., who left Victoria last Friday on a 4,850-mile bicycle tour of Canada via the Trans-Canada Highway.

They believe the slower you travel the more you see and the more you learn about a country and its people. They plan to document the cultural and geographic changes along the way and write about their experiences when they get home.

Their project has received the support of film and camera publications and the National Geographic Society. They hope to complete the trip in four months.

The magazine was so struck by the picture it had it enlarged to 18 x 28 inches and gave it to the Seabus designer, Case Laboratories Ltd., to add to the gallery of marine illustrations decorating the firm's foyer on Cave Street.

The Seabus concept, meanwhile, is being developed by Case to solve a major urban transit problem in Rio de Janeiro.

Farmers get water discount

Saanich farmers will be able to buy water for irrigation at a special discount rate despite a warning from a municipal official that the price reduction would create excessive demands for water.

Saanich council agreed Monday night that water for farmland within the urban containment boundary be made available at a rate only 15 per cent more than the wholesale rate of 18 cents per 1,000 gallons, which Saanich pays to the Greater Victoria Water District.

Farmers now pay the normal retail rate charged to all water consumers — 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

In 1977, 48 agricultural users consumed just over 28 million gallons or 1.24 per cent of all water sold in the municipality.

But municipal engineer Clifford Warren said the potential demand from farmers within the urban containment boundary could be as high as 500 million gallons.

As one example, he noted that a recent application for providing irrigation water to Panama Flats (a potato farm operated by the sons of Saancih Ald. Geoff Vantreight) involves 25 million gallons — almost equal to the total annual demand by 48 other farm operations.

However, Ian Vantreight told council this estimate of water consumption on the Panama Flats land was substantially inaccurate. He said minimal irrigation was required so far because the flood plain had retained a considerable volume of surface water.

Art Garcia, spokesman for the South Saanich Farmers' Institute, also claimed that fears of excessive water use by farmers under the preferential rate were ill-founded.

Even if they went "hog wild," he added, the consumption would not amount to five per cent of all the water sold in Saanich.

A brief from the institute estimated demand could increase roughly five times, to a level of about 150 million gallons.

Council was told that Saanich now produces about $14,000 revenue in supplying 30 million gallons to farmers at the regular retail rate of 18 cents per 1,000 gallons.

That would drop to about $6,000 — in effect, an $8,000 subsidy — by charging the wholesale rate plus 15 per cent.

Only Aldermen Sandy Noel and Irene Block voted against the preferential rate. Ald. John Mika described the subsidy involved as a mere pittance in relation to the agricultural industry's value to the community.

Hiker airlifted

A hospital spokesman said Kim Drew was able to walk into the hospital after arriving in a Labrador search-and-rescue helicopter from CFB Comox.

She had been on the trail with an outdoor education class from the school.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said a passing fishboat, the Dutchman I, radioed for help about 6:50 this morning.

Building Vetoed

Saanich council Monday night rejected a developer's proposal to house 40 doctors and dentists in a new professional building on the south side of Vernon Avenue.

On a split 4-4 vote council turned down the rezoning application of Concord Credits Ltd. before referring it to the public hearing stage.

Those opposed felt the project might prejudice the comprehensive commercial development of the so-called civic core area between Vernon and Seymour.

Similar concerns about "piecemeal" development of the area had been expressed by council's Advisory Planning Commission, although the commission recommended approval.

Macaulay STOL field plan opposed

Mayor Art Young said today the $8 million estimated cost of turning the national defence property into a short takeoff airport would be better spent upgrading facilities at Patricia Bay airport.

Part of the property at Macaulay Point, including waterfront with former artillery installations, is proposed for a terminal to accommodate short takeoff and landing aircraft as the Dash 7, which was demonstrated here last week.

The plane is suggested for Victoria-Vancouver service, preferably on a downtown to dowtown basis that would eliminate long ground connections with the conventional airports.

"It may have some merit but we think $8 million would be much better spent upgrading Patricia Bay," Young said.

"We don't think it's practical, really, when you spend $5 million for the aircraft and $8 million for a runway. Patricia Bay is not that far away.".

Macaulay Point is not central to Victoria, the Esquimalt mayor said.

The real focal point of Greater Victoria is the Douglas-McKenzie intersection, and if that were to be a STOL base most people would have to drive there.

Besides, only one per cent of the population would use the downtown-downtown service, Young said.

Long range plans in Esquimalt call for the eventual turnover of Macaulay Point land for public greenbelt and residential purposes.

Young said the community plan has included this proposal for the past two years as part of the regional plan for the capital.

There are alternative means of achieving the change of ownership and use, provided the defence department and ministry of transport are agreeable.

Young said the two federal departments will be informed of council's position, with a copy to the city of Victoria.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. We keep hearing that Canada has the longest coastline in the world. Is that true and how long is it? B.W.

A. Yes. Canada's Atlantic coastline is 9,843 miles, the Pacific coastline is 4,363 and the Arctic coastline, 11,884.

Fire victims homeless

Neighbors have launched a drive to aid a young mother and her two infant children who lost all their possessions in a fire early today.

The blaze gutted their home on Kemp Lake Road, west of Sooke.

The victims have only the clothes they were wearing when they fled the blaze.

Sooke RCMP said today that Mrs. Barbara Oke, 23, escaped without injury with her two young children, aged 20 months and 5 months, when fire broke out in the attic at about 3 a.m.

Police said the Otter Point volunteer fire department was able only to keep the blaze from spreading to nearby woods.

Cause of the fire is thought to be an electrical fault.

Oke has gone to stay with her mother, who also lives in the Sooke area.

A concerned neighbor said the family lost everything and urgently needs clothing and other household articles.

Anyone wishing to offer the family assistance should call 642-3847. Major items such as a fridge, stove or washing machine are badly needed.

Players threaten hockey expansion

NASSAU, The Bahamas (AP) — The National Hockey League's player-owner council was to resume discussion today of the compensation issue which threatens the league's expansion to four World Hockey Association cities.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players Association, said Monday his group had proposed that cash and-or draft choices be awarded any team which loses a free agent player in the top one-third of the league's salary structure.

Teams would not receive compensation for players in the lower two-thirds of that echelon — players earning less than $125,000. Eagleson said the median NHL salary is $85,000.

"Equalization is the primary issue and unless it's resolved there's no pont continuing," Eagleson said. "The compensation for the top one-third would come from draft choices or dollars and would be decided upon by an arbitrator."

The NHLPA, while continuing its own convention here, was to meet with a council of league owners to discuss the matter. The players, seeking freer movement of athletes from team to team, were expected to take a hard line on the issue.

"We're going to go in there with our proposal, and if we can't work out an agreement, we're going to say, 'That's it. The merger's off,'" said New York Rangers centre Phil Esposito.

Eagleson and the players insist the NHL's acceptance of the four WHA teams — Hartford Whalers, Quebec Nordiques, Edmonton Oilers and Winnipeg Jets — is a merger. The NHL has called it an expansion in order to keep intact the collective bargaining agreement with the players. The players are empowered to cancel that labor agreement if the NHL becomes involved in a merger.

Whatever the terminology, the status of the proposed acceptance of the four teams was very much in doubt entering today's session.

"Right now, it's about 60-40 yes that the merger will go through," said Eagleson, referring to the as-yet-uncompleted plans to include the four franchises. "But it's not a shoo-in."

NHL President John Ziegler, expressing hope the issue could be resolved, admitted three options remained to the league if no agreement could be reached: "We can either extend the time of negotiations, we can go on with this expansion no matter what the players association does, or we can terminate the agreement that we have with the WHA for expansion," he said.

Representatives of the four incoming clubs, not yet full-fledged members of the NHL, attended the meeting as observers. A number of details remain to be handled before the teams receive official admission to the league, and one of them hinges on the outcome of the talks with the players.

A strike by the athletes also has been discussed if the NHLPA does not get its way with regard to compensation. "It was mentioned at our meeting as an alternative," said Eagleson, "however, that's the last thing we want for the good of hockey."

Rain disrupts cricket match

Rain forced abandonment of the international cricket match Monday between Emus of Australia and the Victoria and District Cricket Association Selects at Beacon Hill Park.

Captains of the sides had agreed to play 50 overs each and the Emus batted first, chalking up 248 for the loss of seven wickets.

Early-evening rain, however, caused officials to abandon the match after Selects had scored 46 for five in 37 overs.

Eric Higgins led the side from New South Wales with 69 runs and Gavin Morgan and Terry Skinner added 34 each. Elvin Carter led Selects' bowlers by taking two wickets for the cost of nine runs.

Legion tackles leading Cables

Esquimalt Legion, currently holding down third place, is hoping to close the gap a little tonight while playing host to first-place Burnaby Cablevision in a Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Game time is at 8.

Victory for Legion, which has lost the two previous encounters with Burnaby by close scores, would give the Victorians a share of second place with Richmond Roadrunners, one point behind and with two games in hand over the Cables.

Coach Ken Alexander said Monday the Legion squad was in good shape with only Mike Game, who has a twisted ankle, on the injury list. He will likely call up an intermediate player for the game.

Meanwhile, in league play Monday, Ross Angelucci scored three goals to lead New Westminster Salmonbellies to a 9-6 win over Coquitlam Adanacs at Coquitlam.

Rob Dalzell added two goals for the winners, who led 3-1 at the end of the first period but were tied 6-6 with the Adanacs after 40 minutes.

New Westminster outshot Coquitlam 43-42 and the teams split six minor penalties.

Depailler sidelined

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France (Reuter) — Patrick Depailler, French Formula One driver will be out of action for about three months following his accident while hang-gliding on the weekend, his doctors said Monday.

Dr. Philippe Reaux, who operated on him, said Depailler had broken his right leg in two places, his right ankle and a bone above his left heel.

Raux said the operation lasted three hours and that he might have to operate again in a few days time.

Depailler, who won the Spanish Grand Prix last April, was joint third in this year's world drivers championship standings with Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que.

Two golds for Nadia in World Cup events

TOKYO (AP) — Romania's Nadia Comaneci, 1979 European and 1976 Olympic gymnastics champion, won two of the women's four individual events — the vaulting and floor exercises — in the 1979 World Cup gymnastic championships Monday.

The 17-year-old Comaneci won the floor exercises with a perfect 20.00 points. She scored 10.00 points each Monday and Sunday.

The Romanian star also won the vaulting horse by scoring 9.80 Monday for a total of 19.70 points, and was second on the balance beam with 19.60.

Romanian team-mate Emilia Eberle won the women's balance beam with 19.70 points — 9.80 Sunday and 9.90 Monday. She also shared the uneven parallel bars title with Steffi Kraker of East Germany with 19.65 points. Eberle scored 9.80 Sunday and 9.85 Monday while Kraeker had 9.85 and 9.80.

Soviet newcomer Stella Zakharova, who won the women's combined individual event Sunday, placed second in the vaulting horse with 19.525 points and in the floor exercises with 19.95 points. The 15-year-old Zakharova was third in uneven parallel bars with 19.55 points.

In the men's events, Alexandre Ditiatin of the Soviet Union, who won the men's combined individual events Sunday, captured the rings title with 19.40 points. He scored 9.65 Sunday and 9.75 Monday.

Bart Conner of the United States won the side horse title by scoring 9.65 Sunday and 9.70 Monday for a total of 19.35 points.

Shigeru Kasamatsu of Japan and Stoian Deltchev of Bulgaria shared the floor title with 19.45 points, both scoring 9.70 Sunday and 9.75 Monday. Fellow Japanese Eizo Kenmotsu captured the parallel bars title with 19.60 points. He had 9.80 both Sunday and Monday.

The men's vaulting horse title went to R. Baerther of East Germany, who had 9.75 Sunday and 9.75 Monday for a total of 19.525 points.

Eberhard Gienger of East Germany captured the horizontal bar title with 19.55 points. He scored 9.80 Sunday and 9.75 Monday.

The eight best gymnasts in each event of the combined Sunday competed for individual honors — four events for women and six for men.

Linton keeps rolling toward driving target

The 31-year-old Surrey resident, who hopes to become the first Western Canada harness-racing driver to score 300 victories in one year, moved several steps closer to his goal Monday with four victories and three place finishes in eight starts.

Linton now has 15 winners in the 48 drives he has made during the first 10 days of the summer-long meet for a winning percentage of .313. With his 14 place and four show finishes, it gives him .502 in the Universal Driving Rating System used to determine driving honors.

John Glen, who scored twice Monday, is has eight victories. Joe Hudon, Linton's arch-rival, has nine wins under his belt but will be sidelined for some time with a badly-broken leg.

Linton, whose total for the year is nearing the 200 mark, won with Liquid Smith in the first race, drove Clauds Town to a win in the third, and charged through in the stretch to put Khan Hit in front during the eighth and Thirteens Best ahead in the ninth.

Place finishes came behind Superior Odds in the second, Irish Dawn in the seventh and Dukes Dusty Cash in the 10th.

A camera finish decided Babrow finished closer than Holridge Caper to odds-on Khan Hit in the eighth to set up the largest exactor payoff of the card — $123.

Connors leads show

PARIS (AP) — Led by hammering Jimmy Connors, the United States is making its best showing at the French Open tennis championships since Tony Trabert won the French crown in 1955.

Connors, Eddie Dibbs, and Vitas Gerulaitis have made it to the final eight, with Gene Mayer still a possibility for a quarter-finals slot.

No American has won this event since Trabert, and it has been decades since three Americans reached the quarter-finals.

Connors, here for the first time since 1973, cannonballed his way into the final eight Monday by overpowering Spanish clay court specialist Manuel Orantes, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

Bjorn Borg, who dominated this tournament last year and is considered the world's greatest clay court player, is still the odds-on favorite to win the $49,000 men's prize.

After a long feud with French tennis officials and a seige of unpopularity with the fans, Connors appears to have won them back.

"I think the French are very knowledgeable about tennis," said Connors. "If they like me, that's fine. But I'm not out to win adoption papers. They want to see good tennis and I don't think they care who plays it."

Scotty could select coach

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard says the contract he has offered Scotty Bowman to become general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs includes a clause that would allow Bowman authority to hire his own coach, including current Leafs coach Roger Neilson.

"If Bowman wants Neilson as coach, I'm willing to accept his choice," said Ballard, owner of the National Hockey League club.

"I'd like Scotty to do the coaching, too, but he's not interested in that. His title with us would be general manager and director of hockey operations.

Bowman, coach of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, has a clause in his Montreal contract that has allowed him freedom to negotiate with other NHL clubs for the last 14 days. His agent, Gerry Petrie, said the contract allows him another six days in which to make up his mind whether to accept any of the offers or remain with the Canadiens.

Bowman has been reported to have received offers from at least two other NHL clubs.

May's crunch hit boosts Orioles

By Canadian Press

Sometimes the idea is to get the ball anywhere but over the plate.

Consider, if you will, Mike Marshall's dilemma in the bottom of the 10th inning Monday night. The Minnesota Twins reliever had Baltimore runners on second and third with two out and Lee May at the plate.

He could, of course, walk him intentionally, not a bad idea considering the fact that May has averaged 98 runs batted in during his last decade in the majors.

But Twins manager Gene Mauch recommended Marshall pitch to May — carefully.

Marshall did — but not carefully enough. May hit a single to left field, Baltimore had a 3-2 victory and the Orioles remained one game ahead of Boston in the American League East.

In the rest of the AL, Boston bombed Texas 13-5, California defeated Toronto 4-2, New York beat Kansas City 8-3, Milwaukee blanked Chicago 6-0, Seattle shelled Detroit 11-2 and Cleveland beat Oakland 5-4 in 14 innings.

"May was never supposed to see a strike," Mauch muttered after the Twins fell two games behind first-place California in the West. "If he wanted to get himself out, fine!"

But Marshall, 8-5, said it wasn't his fault that his slider wound up over the plate instead of on the edge, and that May wound up with his second run batted in of the game and 34th of the season — and with his ninth game-winning hit, tops in the league.

"There's no such thing as a bad pitch," Marshall said. "You can't throw exactly where you want every time. You just throw the best you can. There's nobody in the league I don't go after."

Meanwhile, in the National League, Houston pitcher Randy Niemann was not supposed to make big waves when the Astros called him up from the minors — just fill in until the ailing pitching staff got back on its feet.

And despite pitching a six-hit shutout for his second straight major league victory Monday night, he still hasn't impressed Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark.

"Niemann is a AA or AAA pitcher at best," Ozark said after the Astros beat the Phillies 3-0 for their seventh straight victory. "The Phillies just aren't swinging the bat."

Ozark made the comment after Niemann had whittled his earned-run average down to 1.72 and yielded only one walk in his last 18 innings.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2, New Mets defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-2 and Monteal Expos dumped Atlanta Braves, 8-1.

T-Men leap over Rocks

DUNCAN — Nanaimo Timbermen vaulted over idle Victoria Shamrocks into a tie for second place by beating Vancouver Burrards 12-7 in a Western Lacrosse Association game before approximately 300 fans Monday night at the Cowichan Community Centre.

Victory moved Nanaimo into a tie with Coquitlam Adanacs, nine points behind leading New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Stuart Aird scored twice for Vancouver. Singles came from Pat Differ, Mike McMillan, Eric Otterstrom, Bill Foote and Brian Spaven, a Victoria senior "B" player picked up for the game.

Nanaimo led 5-2 at the end of the first period and 9-4 at the end of the second.

Kelvin Gill blocked 49 shots for Vancouver while Mac Maude stopped 31 for Nanaimo before he was injured late in the third period. He was replaced by Earl Nicholson, who made three saves.

Shamrocks have an opportunity to take over the second position when they tackle the last-place Burrards tonight in Vancouver. However, a Vancouver victory would leave the Irish alone in the basement.

Good value and pleasure to be found on nine-holers

On any decent course, golf is golf. With the evenings long and the weather good, now is as good a time as any to suggest that some neighbors are missing a bet if they haven't become acquainted with Vancouver Island's nine-holers.

A lot of fun out there.

Prospect Lake, Ardmore, Sooke's Broome Hill and Metchosin all have their own unique features, and can be charming tests. More important, they are needed and, along with the district's par-three courses such as Mt. Douglas and Golflands (Mattick's), contribute much to golf's well-being in the area.

They are welcome for reasons of economy, for reasons that can be psychological, and for reasons that can be aesthic and/or enviromental.

It is ridiculous for a casual player to pay a $1,500 entrance fee and yearly dues for up to $400 if he plays only half-dozen games a year. Green fees are the proper answer for the casual player. And because of the reasonable fees charged by the nine-holers, those courses also suit pensioners on fixed incomes.

The enviromentalists delight in green belts, and further comment in that regard is not necessary.

Most obvious, of course, is the starter's role they play. Not every beginner wants to chew up the first tee in front of his or her peers. Rather, many prefer to start learning the game unnoticed, and without pressure from players behind them.

Women are most susceptible to that starting embarassment, and a quiet, mid-week evening outing on a nine-holer has been the answer for many. In time, they have been able to "graduate" with confidence to the busier 18-hole clubs.

My favorite reason for playing a nine-holer is mood. There is great relaxation in an unhurried stroll in the late afternoon or early evening.

It is a feeling that I also get around Oak Bay's "point" (7th, 8th, 9th) holes, when not pressed from behind. Extra strokes never seem to matter when playing Oak Bay while being provided with magnificent views of Mt. Baker, the Olympics and Trial Island, or while watching a seal swim along the kelp beds near the shore.

Except for Oak Bay's point, the district's big clubs can't seem to match that serenity that prevails on a nine-holer on a warm, summer's evening.

The most pleasant round I played last year was an unhurried visit to Prospect Lake. As it turned out, the wives in the mixed foursome quickly shed pre-game nervousness and, they said, thoroughly enjoyed the game.

Apart from domestic peace, there were other niceties. A large flock of Canada geese, telephone-pole high, circling and honking loudly as they prepared to set down on Prospect Lake . . . A doe and her yearling enjoying apples from one of the many fruit trees . . . A cock pheasant strutting, also without hurry, across a green . . . And rabbits, here and there, enjoying their salads.

Nine-holers are nice and, please, don't ever downgrade their value.

BRIEFLY: Saanich's hunt for a professional at Cedar Hill to replace the departed Bill Goldsworthy should end within two weeks . . . As I hear it, a dozen or so applicants will be screened and the bidders will be reduced to three "finalists" by the end of the week . . . Despite conflict with the City Amateur, the Broome Hill Open attracted a record field of over 80 at the weekend . . . Metchosin's Dale Lowe won low gross with a three-over 69, one stroke better than Broome Hill's Chris Bing . . . And 72-year-old Hector Henry, scoring 86-30 — 56, won low net honors.

Victoria closed to within a two and a half points of first-place Royal Colwood during play Monday in the Greater Victoria Junior Golf League.

Competitors from the Oak Bay club swept all three best-ball matches en route to a 7½-1½ decision over visiting Cedar Hill and boosted their season total to 25 points.

Royal Colwood stayed on top with 27½ points after posting a 6-3 win over host Uplands. Gorge Vale downed host Glen Meadows by the same count.

Carew sidelined

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Torn ligaments in Rod Carew's right thumb will keep the California Angels' first baseman on the sidelines for about four weeks.

Carew, 33, won the American League batting champion seven times with Minnesota Twins before he was traded to the Angels last February and is hitting .355 this year.

Canada advances to cricket semis

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Canada, Sri Lanka, Bermuda and Denmark won through to the last four of the World Cup cricket qualifying competition Monday.

Canada defeated Fiji by 56 runs to finish second in Group Two and qualified for a semi-final berth as the most successful runner-up in the three groups.

The final score was Canada 209 for 6 in 60 overs; Fiji 153 for 53.5 overs.

In Wednesday's semi-finals Canada will go against Bermuda and Denmark meets Sri Lanka, the winners advancing into the championship round against the six test-playing countries — Australia, England, India, New Zealand, Pakistan and West Indies — starting Saturday.

Bermuda, which topped Group One, was the most impressive winner Monday while beating East Africa by nine wickets. Denmark, which led Group Two, beat Bangladesh by 10 runs, to be the only team to accumulate the maximum 16 points in qualifying play.

An unexpected eight-run win by the United States against Wales lifted the Americans level with Sri Lanka in Group Three, but Sri Lanka won the group on a the basis of a faster scoring rate.

Strathcona trims James Bay

Fred Hanson came through with a two-run homer and Ken Greenhall pitched a two-hitter to boost Strathcona Hotel to a 10-0 shutout over James Bay Inn during Macdonald Men's Softball League play Monday at Macdonald Park.

Rain forced postponement of all games in other leagues.

Tagge earns praise

COURTENAY — Head coach Vic Rapp is somewhat less than enchanted with the progress of his British Columbia Lions in their Canadian Football League training camp.

Rapp had his club back on training drills Monday after watching the Lions plod through an intra-squad game Sunday, marking the end of the first week of camp.

"It wasn't real good," said Rapp. "I think we proved we've got a long ways to go.

"After a week of camp you start looking for some continuity . . . we had breakdowns and mistakes from both the offence and defence."

Rapp did praise the work of veteran quarterback Jerry Tagge, along with the efforts of defensive end Drew Taylor, who is coming off a knee injury that kept him out of the second half of the 1978 season.

Also impressive was rookie defensive tackle Nick Hebeler of Simon Fraser University, said the coach.

Injuries were bothering Rapp, including the absence of running backs Robert Johnson and Calvin Culliver, guard John Blain, linebacker Sam Britts, defensive end Louie Richardson, wide receiver Leon Bright, tight end Ricky Ellis, defensive tackle Doug Seymour, defensive back John Beaton and guard Glenn Leonhard. They have a variety of injuries.

The Lions open their exhibition season June 12 in Edmonton against the Eskimos, defending Grey Cup champions.

It was announced in Toronto Monday that CFL teams have only two roster deadlines to meet this year before the start of the regular season.

The clubs must reduce their rosters to 45 players by 3 p.m. June 22 with the final cut to 33 players — including a maximum 15 imports — on July 6.

The regular season opens July 10 with Montreal Alouettes visiting Toronto.

Golf leaders tackle Gorge

With Dave Mick and Lawrie Kerr, 1-2 in the City Amateur tournament last weekend, in the lineup, Royal Colwood will be out to protect its early lead when Inter-Club Golf League action resumes Wednesday.

Colwood will be up against a strong Gorge Vale squad, playing at home. In other matches, Victoria visits Uplands and Glen Meadows will play at Cedar Hill.

Wednesday's draws:

Glen Meadows at Cedar Hill

Lawyers racing to file DC-10 crash lawsuits

By LAURA KIERNAM

WASHINGTON (WP) — Before the bodies had been taken away from the site of the recent crash of an American Airlines DC-10 in Chicago, the nation's small and exclusive group of "air disaster" lawyers received the first inquiries from shocked relatives of the 274 victims.

Four days after the catastrophe — the first day the courthouse doors were open after the holiday weekend — lawsuits for damages were filed, one in Chicago and one in Los Angeles.

And late on the sixth day after the crash, an investigator for the Illinois attorney disclipinary committee got the first signal that the race for cases was on. A man with the same name as the husband of one crash victim had received several telephone messages that left the number of a prominent Chicago attorney. It was as if someone had paged through the telephone book, matching the names with a list of the dead.

The long, complicated and sometimes ugly process of pinning down the blame and assessing the cost of the country's worst air disaster has begun.

The air disaster lawyers, a tiny fraternity of specialists with unusual expertise in the complexities of aircraft and the law of aviation, will slowly piece together their version of why the crash occurred. With damage awards or settlements virtually guaranteed, legal fees can climb over the million dollar mark.

"There's no doubt about it. . .there's bucks there," said W. Marshall Morgan of Morgan Wenzel and McNicholas in Los Angeles.

"You can make a lot of money if everything falls just right. There are lawyers who will make a tremendous amount of money on this case."

John Kennelly, 59, the author of a two-volume book on air crash litigation, estimates that damage payments to the families of the crash victims will average $300,000.

Over the past 15 years, as aviation technology gained sophistication and aircraft design became increasingly complicated, air disaster litigation became an art. Only about eight law firms scattered throughout the country take on the massive cases. Within those firms, a handful of high-powered finely skilled plaintfiffs' lawyers, virtually monopolize major crash cases wherever they occur worldwide.

Air disaster lawyers consider Kennelly one of their deans. White-haired and unassuming, he has been in the business for 21 years.

Donald Madole and his wife, Juanita Madole, both are pilots and lawyers with the firm of Speiser Krause and Madole in Washington. Unlike Kennelly, who works as a lone wolf, the Madoles team up on disaster cases.

Donald Madole, who spent years as a lawyer for the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration, American Airlines and the Civil Aeronautics Board, will handle the Chicago disaster cases for the firm. He knows the aircraft and the people behind it, a partner said.

In New York, Lee S. Kreindler of Kriendler and Kreindler on Park Avenue, tried his first aviation case with his father in 1952. Since then, Kreindler says of the disaster cases, "You name them, we were in them."

On the West Coast, Kreindler works closely with Morgan in Los Angeles. In San Francisco, Gerald Sterns of Sterns Bostwick and Tehin has firmly planted himself among the leading air disaster lawyers.

Once all the claims are filed in the Chicago crash, estimates are that it will take three to four years for them to be resolved — the standard wait in massive disaster cases.

At a 1978 meeting of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, John V. Brennan, president of United States Aviation Insurance Group that covered the ill-fated American Airlines DC-10, provided a glimpse at the legal fees gained as a result of the 1974 crash of a Turkish Airlines DC-10 near Paris.

Lee Kreindler's firm handled the cases for the families of 64 victims, 48 of whom were from Japan. Settlements totaled $13.1 million. Legal fees were $2.3 million. Kreindler says Marshall Morgan got more than $500,000 of the fee. Some money went to local lawyers who referred cases to Kreindler and some paid for Kreindler's weekly trips from New York to Los Angeles and his nine trips to Japan.

Speiser Krause and Madole received $28.8 million in settlements involving families of 144 victims and the firm charged $4.4 million in fees.

When the stakes are that high, the competition to get as many of the cases as possible heats up and the attorneys jockey for a command position when the cases finally get to the courtroom.

"In this business, one of the games lawyers play with each other is how many cases they have," said Gerald Sterns. The more cases, the bigger the fee and the greater opportunity to try to take control of the entire case.

Mass disaster cases may well be highly profitable for the air disaster lawyers, but the litigation is extraordinarily complex and expensive. The sheer volume of work, the demand for aviation expertise and the cost of bringing the case to court usually prompts the family lawyer to turn to the big air disaster firms for help.

"Airplane litigation is complicated — if it's done right," said Donald Madole, ". . .you just can't walk in and say my client bought a ticket, the plane crashed and therefore you owe him money.

"It's not a system of rewards. It's a system of compensation and there's a precise way to formulate that loss," he said.

Xeroxing costs alone in one case can run up to $100,000. Hotel suites have to be rented near the crash site so that the lawyers can have a place to take depositions. The transcripts of those statements can cost another $100,000. Shipping lawyers and documents around the world adds to the cost.

Most of the financing for all this is put up at the start of the case by a committee of lawyers named by the court to act in behalf of all the victims who have filed lawsuits. And the committee always includes lawyers from the air crash disaster firms — established, respected and financially solid.

"You've got to be able to lay it on the line with cash," said Marshall Morgan.

Jet's tire falls off

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner bound for Reno, Nev., made an emergency landing after one of its six tires dropped about 900 metres to the ground following takeoff, authorities said.

The aircraft, after dumping fuel over the Pacific Ocean to lighten its load, landed Monday at San Francisco International Airport without incident. There were no reports of injuries among the 116 passengers aboard Flight 135.

The 235-pound tire smashed into a curb in a residential section of Richmond, making a noise like a bomb as it fell, witnesses said. It bounced 75 feet before coming to rest. No one was injured.

It was the second incident in two days involving faulty landing gear on a 727 aircraft. On Sunday in Oklahoma City, a Los Angeles-bound American Airlines jetliner made an emergency stop from full takeoff speed after two tires under its left wing exploded into flames.

Six of 115 people aboard Flight 119 suffered minor injuries sliding down evacuation chutes during the incident at Will Rogers World Airport.

Moscow sidles up to Peking

WASHINGTON (WP) The Soviet Union informed the People's Republic of China Monday it is ready to negotiate in July or August to improve relations between the rival giants of international communism, according to reports from Moscow

The Yugoslavian news agency Tanjug reported that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko handed the proposals to the senior Chinese diplomat in Moscow. The move amounts to Soviet acceptance of a bid for negotiations made by China on May 5.

United States officials were not surprised by either the substance or timing of the reported Soviet decision. Policy-makers here said Moscow and Peking appear anxious to prevent their strategic and doctrinal quarrel from getting out of hand.

Moscow's timing, in the American view, probably was affected by the forthcoming summit meeting late next week of President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. By making a gesture now to improve relations with Peking, the Soviets may be indicating that they, too, have options and room to manoeuvre in the game of triangular U.S.-China-Soviet diplomacy, and suggesting there are limits to American use of a "China card" against Moscow.

Leftover meat and vegetables can make excellent additions to homemade soups and stews.

Freeze them for use at a later time in preparing imaginative, economical meals. For storing, Safeway stocks a wide variety of convenient plastic bags and containers in many sizes and shapes.

Leftovers needn't be boring the second time around. An economy minded cook regards leftovers as a challenge to creativity. Even a left over hot dog, sliced up, can add interest and flavor to scrambled eggs or soup.

N-protests rock France

PARIS (Reuter) — Thousands of protesters staged anti-nuclear energy demonstrations in various areas of France on Monday.

In Plogoff, in southern Brittany, 6,000 persons led by local Mayor Jean Marie Kerloch gathered on a site where the National Electricity Board plans to build a nuclear plant and pledged to prevent its construction.

In Fessenheim, in eastern France, about 3,000 persons — including 500 who hiked from Bad-Krozningen, across the border in West Germany — assembled near a nuclear plant under construction.

At the northeastern town of Cattenom, near Thionville, hundreds of protesters demanded a halt to construction there of a giant nuclear plant, expected to be completed by 1986.

Most border posts along the 200-kilometre frontier area with Belgium, Luxembourg and West Germany were closely controlled and hundreds of foreign anti-nuclear protesters were prevented from entering France.

In Switzerland, meanwhile, more than 3,000 demonstrators vowed to intensify their fight against nuclear power at the end of a three-day tour of atomic installations.

Assembling at Graben, site of a proposed nuclear power station, the demonstrators passed a resolution that they would do their utmost to halt the nuclear program.

Shuttle to track Soviet satellites

WASHINGTON (WP) — The multi-billion-dollar U.S. space shuttle program will be used to test, among other military and intelligence systems, an infrared device designed to more effectively track Soviet military space satellites, according to Pentagon sources.

Under current Defence Department thinking, the actual destruction of Soviet satellites would be handled by land-based F-15 fighter planes, which could fly to 100,000 feet and launch heat-seeking rockets. The space shuttle systems also might inspect but would not destroy Soviet space weapons.

Last January and February, when U.S. and Soviet negotiators sat down in Bern, Switzerland, to start serious talks on an agreement to limit satellite destroying systems, the space shuttle became a major stumbling block.

The Soviets stated they regarded each of the $600 million orbiting vehicles as anti-satellite-capable weapons. The Bern talks ended with little progress toward any common understanding on what systems would be limited.

The shuttle's role came up again as talks resumed in Vienna aimed at developing one-year prohibition in testing anti-satellite weapons. The White House hoped such a freeze could be signed as part of the U.S.-Soviet summit scheduled to start June 15.

The first shuttle test was scheduled for Nov. 9 — during the proposed one-year freeze period. Monday Pentagon and National Aeronautical and Space Administration officials told a Senate subcommittee the shuttle test would be postponed until early in 1980.

The shuttle's primary military and intelligence roles are focused on putting into orbit "navigation, communications, ballistic missile early warning, surveillance and weather forecasting" satellites, Dr. William J. Perry, under-secretary of defence for research and engineering, told a Senate Commerce subcommittee Monday.

He added the shuttle also would be able to recover and tinker with satellites while in space and return them to orbit. It also could help assemble space structures.

The shuttle has been recognized officially as having the capability to be an anti-satellite weapon, although the Pentagon says it doesn't intend to use it that way.

The fiscal 1980 arms control impact statements that were drafted by the president's National Security Council, approved by the Defense and State departments along with the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and released last March pointed out the shuttlers could "inspect . . . satellites in orbit" and "retrieve" systems.

In addition, the statement noted the shuttle "could provide a vehicle for deploying, monitoring, supporting and retrieving anti-satellite systems."

The statement concluded that "the U.S. position is that the space shuttle has no part in the U.S. space defence effort."

At Monday's Senate Commerce subcommittee hearing, chairman Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., said "it is true" that the space shuttle could be used in an anti-satellite role, but that it "would be crazy to do it since it is big and vulnerable."

Stevenson said Monday that Soviet officials had raised questions about the space shuttle during his last trip to that country, but that he suspected they were doing it for "debating points."

Riot squad attacked

AJACCIO, France (Reuter) — Several hundred persons attacked the riot police barracks in Ajaccio early today with gasoline bombs and shotguns, police said.

Four policemen were injured and an undisclosed number of people were later arrested.

The attack followed a series of fist fights Monday in Ajaccio bars between local youths and off-duty riot police in civilian clothes.

The incidents were not formally linked to the autonomist agitation on this Mediterranean island.

Student 'forgotten' in closet

CHICAGO (UPI) — A substitute teacher who locked a fourth grader inside a schoolroom closet for punishment and then apparently forgot about him has resigned his teaching certificate.

Ricardo Davenport, 26, locked 10-year-old Orlando Tillman in a schoolroom closet at 1:30 p.m. Friday and then apparently forgot about him. The student got out nearly 24 hours later when police rescued him, tired and hungry but otherwise unharmed.

Davenport, who teaches at the John P. Altgeld School, met with school officials Monday and then "voluntarily turned in his teaching certificate," Chicago Board of Education spokesman Thomas Maloney said.

Chicago police Sgt. Charles C. Risoya said Davenport was distracted Friday because of the medical problems of one of his own children.

"If he had intended to hurt Tillman he wouldn't have done it that way," Risoya said.

EVIL BUT NOT KNIEVEL balancing act was ex tempore performance by 17-year-old Debbie Heath of Portage, Mich., who managed to run her vehicle up the guy wires of utility pole after she lost control. Miss Heath is shown being comforted by her unidentified passenger.

India's brides not for burning

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian women leaders have started campaigning against the outlawed dowry system, a tradition still practised here despite accusations it results in the murder of hundreds of young girls annually by dissatisfied husbands and in-laws.

"Women are not for burning," chanted 150 demonstrators outside the home of New Delhi family accused of fatally burning a young bride.

Satpal Singh and Tarvinder Kau were married last December. In the tradition of Indian families, the 24-year-old bride moved into the home of her husband's parents.

She told the police just before she died two weeks ago she was watching television when her mother-in-law crept up behind her and doused her with kerosene and her sister-in-law set her ablaze.

Police said Tarvinder accused her in-laws of burning her because they didn't consider her dowry adequate

Tarvinder's parents had given the bridegroom the equivalent of $2,500 in cash, a motor scooter, a television set, a refrigerator and gold jewelry. The police said the dead girl's family reported Singh's parents demanded more money.

"Hundreds of young girls are burned or beaten to death every year by their husbands and mothers-in-law over the issue of dowry," said Suman Krishan Kant, head of the Women's Grievances Society.

'Illegal' funds debt for Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As the result of an audit that took three years to complete, U.S. President Jimmy Carter's 1976 campaign committee has been ordered to repay $50,000 — including $23,000 the Federal Election Commission concluded was spent illegally.

The Carter campaign, which wound up the election broke, with only about $1,000 in the bank, had to ask the Democratic National Committee to pay the debt.

The amount was one of the largest the FEC ordered any campaign to repay the government in 1976 — the first presidential election financed with federal funds.

"There are no surprises to us," said Carter spokesman Jody Powell. "It's only one tenth of 1 per cent of all the money we spent."

Commission auditors determined originally that Carter owed $82,000, but the figure was trimmed to $50,000 after FEC members split 3-3 on whether the additional $32,000 should be assessed.

The commission agreed on the remaining $50,000, which came from two principal sources:

The commission said $27,000 the Carter committee had received in interest from telephone company deposits should be returned since it was interest received on federal funds. This is a relatively routine procedure.

Simpler breast surgery in cancer cases endorsed

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) — The majority of a National Cancer Institute committee is believed likely to recommend today that surgeons can all but abandon the radical form of breast surgery still being done on some 25,000 women a year, or one woman in six with early breast cancer.

New findings to be presented to the expert panel at a conference at the National Institutes of Health will show that simpler breast removals have saved just as many lives as the more radical operations in more than 1,600 women followed for nearly six years at 34 medical centres. After hearing the findings, a majority of the NCI committee is expected to endorse the simpler operation.

The new statistics show that what surgeons call a "simple" mastectomy, or breast removal, is as effective in treating early breast cancer as the "radical" operation that removes both the breast and the chest wall muscles, causing more disability and disfigurement.

One woman in 13 in the U.S. gets breast cancer, and there are 160,000 new cases a year.

Many breast surgeons already have simplified their operating methods as they followed the research results over the past few years.

But many have been waiting for at least five years' follow-up of treated women, and some review by an expert group like that assembled at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., today.

There will be some disagreement with the conclusion that simpler surgery is equally effective in most cases. The most prominent dissenter will be Dr. Jerome Urban of Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, New York, who thinks that 10 years or more of follow-up are necessary before any such conclusion.

Most surgeons, Dr. Joseph Allegra of the cancer institute said, now feel that "the radical mastectomy is no longer the preferred operation," in primary, localized breast cancer, or even in breast cancer that has spread to the underarm lymph nodes.

Most surgeons, he reported, feel they just as effectively can do "a simpler operation" — either the "simple" mastectomy or a "modified radical," meaning removal of the breast and at least some underarm lymph nodes — with radiation, often, as added treatment when there is disease in the lymph nodes.

The figures that back this up will be reported by Dr. Bernard Fisher, of the University of Pittsburgh, coordinator of the U.S.-wide study financed by the cancer institute.

Fisher most recently has said that among women with no lymph node disease — that is, where the cancer is truly primary or localized in the breast — 76 per cent survived for five years after a radical mastectomy (which removed the breast, chest muscles and underarm nodes); 74 per cent after the "simple" removal of the breast alone, plus follow-up radiation, and 73 per cent after breast removal alone.

AND THE BRIDGE CAME TUMBLING DOWN but in the name of charity not terrorism in the East Anglia village of Thorpe Thewles, England. Some 9,000 raffle tickets were sold at 10p. (20¢) each for the honor of pressing the detonator button which would demolish the defunct Victorian-era railway viaduct.

Ghana rebels claim victory in overthrow of military

LOME, Togo (AP) — Rebel officers say they have ousted the military government in Ghana and control the main military barracks outside Accra, the capital of the West African country.

Radio Accra said the revolt was led by Lieut. Jerry Rawlings, a leftist who was jailed after an attempted coup in mid-May. The broadcast said other rebels raided the city jail Monday and freed him.

At least one member of the military junta that had been in power for 11 months apparently went over to the rebels. Lt.-Gen. Joshua Hamidu, calling himself the chief of the defence staff, said in a broadcast he was in the Accra radio station "to confirm that the army headquarters, 1st Brigade Headquarters, Burma Camp, are under the control of the revolutionary forces and supporting forces."

"There can be no cause for alarm," he told the country's 8.5 million people. "We have taken control of all the vital points in the country."

There was no mention of the 2nd Infantry Brigade stationed at Kumasi, 160 kilometres north of the capital. Burma Camp, the main barracks, is on the outskirts of Accra.

The rebels seized the radio station Monday and ordered loyalists barricaded in the Accra police headquarters to surrender or be attacked by planes, broadcasts said.

Hamidu was a member of the military regime, known as the Supreme Military Council, headed by Lt.-Gen. Fred Akuffo. Akuffo ousted Gen. Ignatius Acheampong last July.

Broadcasts said elections scheduled by Akuffo for June 18 to restore civilian rule will go ahead. However, there was speculation the elections may be delayed or rigged to confirm the rebel officers in power.

Ghana was Britain's first black African colony to gain independence, in 1957. The first prime minister, Kwame Nkrumah, turned the country into a one-party state and it was nearly bankrupt when the military ousted him in 1966.

Doughnuts, bars help man survive

ENUMCLAW, Wash. (AP) — An Enumclaw man, who lived on four candy bars, two doughnuts and two maple bars, has been found after being stuck for 18 days on a remote road.

Gus Stergion's car was spotted by a forest service helicopter Friday after police had searched more than 800 miles of backwood roads since his disappearance May 15.

Stergion, 64, said his car got stuck in a patch of snow as he was driving on a forest service road.

He said he wasn't worried because, "if you use your noodle, don't panic and find water, you'll be fine."

Stergion found a stream nearby and rationed out the food, giving some to his dog. The food lasted four days.

He lost 40 of his 300 pounds during the ordeal, but was described in good condition when he was found.

Stergion said he stayed with his car, because he has a bad hip and walks with a cane.

By JOHN FRASER
Globe and Mail

PEKING — Municipal authorities here have issued a stern new civic edict which prohibits all but officially approved contacts and friendships with foreigners.

The edict is an expanded version of public security bureau guidelines on relations between foreigners and Chinese issued earlier and which have already been read out in various institutes in the city. The edict goes into considerable detail about the kinds of things which are specifically taboo unless the state is formally informed through a person's unit. All Chinese belong to a work, commune or academic unit and it is the basic system by which the state controls many aspects of peoples' lives.

The edict provides insight into the kinds of things that have irked certain authorities in Peking during the past half year. It is now forbidden, for example, to have meals with foreigners in restaurants, join them at the theatre, attend dance parties or visit them in their homes. It is forbidden to give out one's address to a foreigner.

Since some addresses have already been given out, if a foreigner makes a visit it must be reported to the relevant unit. Chinese are forbidden to ask foreigners to buy them superior-quality Chinese goods at the foreigners-only friendship store. Citizens in trouble with the authorities are forbidden to appeal to western journalists for assistance. Sexual relations with foreigners are forbidden.

The Draconian edict is not based on any laws which exist in China and is backed up only by the power of authorities. As such, it highlights in a spectacular way the distance China still has to go before it can lay claim to anything resembling a recognizable rule of law.

To understand how all this works, you must grasp what passes for logic among certain Communist officials and theoreticians who seem to dominate Peking's version of city hall and its propaganda outlet, the Peking Daily.

Having a friendship with a foreigner is not illegal since the state can formally approve such a relationship upon request. A few such friendships still exist and there is nothing overtly sinister about them except that the state has decided any potential threat is minimal.

Consequently, when an official states there is nothing illegal about normal contacts between Chinese and foreigners, he is technically correct. That is because banning all unofficial contacts has nothing to do with the law whatsoever. It is simply a statement.

Apparently, it was not even considered necessary to issue a list of possible consequences should Chinese transgress the strictures of the edict.

Such actions have historical precedents in Chinese history and can be traced directly back from the Communists through the old Guo Mindang government of Chiang Kai-shek, the era of the warlords, and ultimately to the imperial system itself. One Chinese university student who had the stipulations read out to him at an internal meeting reported to a foreign student that an official said relations with foreigners should go back to where they were "before last November".

Unique student project

A new magazine that is appearing in local book stores is as unique as it is unpretentious.

Titled Two Minutes Silence . . . Victorians Remember World War I, it was compiled by eight students of the Victoria Girls' Alternative Program (GAP) at 3040 Fifth Street.

It contains a collection of interviews with First World War veterans and others who lived through those days, accompanied by pictures.

The project's co-editors Pam Cox and Angie Royea were backed up by Liz McPherson, Maryanne Birch, Alison Thompson, Vicki Cook, Terrie Craddock and Judith Paltiel.

Taping their interviews, the students successfully bridged the age gap to set down on record vivid memories of the years between 1914 and 1918.

There is even a picture of McPherson's great-grandfather, Pte. Willism Hole and excerpts of letters he sent from France, where he died on Aug. 11, 1918 after being wounded.

Excerpts from the interviews were used in a Remembrance Day page in the Times in 1978 and soon after, the school began putting the magazine together.

With their magazine finally on city book shelves and selling for $2, the students are already figuring out what their next publication will be.

One possibility being considered is using a local strike, should there be one, as the subject, interviewing both management and union members to get both sides of the confrontation.

By getting the students immersed in such projects, alternative schools like GAP regain the attention of students who, for one reason or another, have opted out of the normal school system.

Feeling in leg: It's wait, see

MONTREAL (UPC) — A 14½-hour nerve operation on Elizabeth McFadden was described as "technically successful" but it will be days before the 12-year-old girl from New York state knows if feeling has been restored to her reattached right leg.

"They are just putting the cast on now," said Paul Tree, director of Royal Victoria Hospital, moments after the operation ended at 9:30 p.m. PDT Monday night.

"The surgeon heading the team told us it was technically successful but we will have to wait for recovery before we know if it was a complete success," he said.

"The operation was performed as planned and there were no complications," he said, although the hospital itself was suffering through a strike by its support staff. It did not affect the operation.

The young girl from Central Islip, N.Y., lost her leg Dec. 31 when she fell beneath a Long Island Rail Road commuter train while she and her 13-year-old sister were being chased by two boys.

Her leg was reattached during surgery the same day. The operation at Royal Victoria Hospital was to take the sural nerve in her left leg and graft it to the severed sciatic nerve in her right leg in an attempt to restore feeling.

An eight-member surgical team led by Dr. Julia Terzis, a renowned microsurgeon, began the operation at 6 a.m. PDT Monday.

"All these nerve operations are very long," said Tree. Also present at the operation were two New York doctors who accompanied the girl to Montreal.

PQ asbestos deal slammed

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition leaders charged the provincial government Monday with bad faith in its dealings with the major shareholder of Asbestos Corp, General Dynamics Corp., of St. Louis, Mo.

In second-reading debate on a bill to exproporiate the company, Liberal leader Claude Ryan and Union Nationale chief Rodrigue Biron criticized what they termed the government's "serious lack of studies, its refusal to listen and work with Asbestos Corp., and its bad faith in negotiations with General Dynamics."

But Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry said acquiring the Thetford Mines, Que., asbestos extractor would finally give Quebec, which produces 35 per cent of the world's supply of the fire-resistant fibre, the chance to control one of its greatest natural resources.

"Private industry has had ample chance to gain the confidence of Quebecers. In fact, the Union Nationale and Liberal parties have granted the private asbestos companies 90 years of confidence," Landry told the national assembly.

He said asbestos corporations had not bothered to process more than three per cent of their product within the province, nor had they made any attempt to work with Quebec companies.

N-power talks end in the dark

BRUDENELL, P.E.I. (CP) — Premier Angus MacLean of Prince Edward Island sat Monday evening in a darkened room in the midst of a province-wide power failure and said P.E.I. doesn't want to have anything to do with nuclear power.

Power commission officials said the power failure started in New Brunswick and lasted about two hours.

The irony of that situation was that Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick and Premier John Buchanan of Nova Scotia were both here to meet MacLean to discuss nuclear power, a political hot potato that both Buchanan and MacLean appear willing to drop.

Many reporters covering the premiers' meeting quipped later that Hatfield's staff probably pulled the plug on its power system just to show tiny P.E.I. how much it depends on the power of its much larger neighbor.

"Not that I'm aware of," MacLean said when asked if there was any significance that could be attached to the power failure which began moments before he was to start an evening news conference.

TORONTO (UPC) — An Ontario judge has been urged to give a nine- to 12-year sentence to Toronto millionaire businessman Sidney Cooper, convicted on three counts of conspiracy to defraud government agencies involved with dredging.

Cooper, former president of Pitts Engineering Construction Co. Ltd. of Toronto, was one of five dredging company executives convicted three weeks ago of defrauding government agencies of more than $4 million.

Cooper's lawyer, Austin Cooper, Monday told Mr. Justice William Parker that for the Crown to seek a term of nine to 12 years "totally distorted the facts and was shocking."

However, Crown Attorney Rod McLeod maintained deterrence was important in the case which involved bid-rigging on dredging work in the Toronto and Hamilton harbors, the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Expo '67 site.

McLeod cited at least eight separate fraud convictions involved in the case, including that of Kenneth Elliott, former Hamilton harbor commissioner, who received a six-year prison sentence for accepting a $150,000 bribe from dredging company executives. His conviction led to the dredging trial.

A series of prominent businessmen testified concerning Cooper's good character.

Representatives from the city's Mount Sinai Hospital suggested Cooper's services would be required as chairman of a building committee for a four-year $25-million construction project.

Mr. Justice Parker reserved his sentencing decision on Cooper until all submissions had been entered on behalf of the other four accused.

Grizzly keeps jump ahead

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — A year-old grizzly bear named Jody continues to elude RCMP and others trying to recapture him.

The ambling grizzly was last seen south of the town near Moon Lake in Riding Mountain National Park. Earlier, he visited Ethelbert to the north and a Dauphin-district farm.

So far, Jody has avoided all traps set, while a tranquilzer dart shot into his hide has had no effect.

On the good side, the spirits of Buffy, Jody's mate on the game farm owned by Larry Williamson, have brightened. Williamson says Buffy has finally crawled out of a deep depression caused by Jody's departure, is eating a little and is beginning to respond.

The game farm owner adds he's already looking for a new grizzly cub to console Buffy should Jody not return.

Unification an issue: McKinnon

McKinnon, 62, MP for Victoria and a former artillery major, said he will ask his department to prepare a report on defence policy within a year.

That review will include an assessment of unification of the armed forces, the move that touched off such a storm in the 1960s, he said, adding that defence policy had not been reviewed since the early 1970s and needs a new look.

He said there are "some advantages to unification, there is no doubt about that."

But he wanted to see if there might be some areas where unification of the army, navy and air force had drawbacks.

"It would be a rather traumatic experience for the forces to go through another change. I wouldn't want to go through that needlessly."

McKinnon said the new cabinet will study the $2.3-billion program to buy fighter plane, and he expects a decision by the end of this year. There are two finalists — the McDonnell Douglas F-18 fighter and the General Dynamics F-16.

He repeated he would like to buy second-hand Iranian F-14 fighters for North American air defence and another plane for Europe.

The F-14 is the most sophisticated fighter in the world and also the most expensive. But McKinnon says he has been told Iran is offering some at a reasonable price.

He has also been named veterans affairs minister and indicated he would like to keep the Canadian Pension Commission in Ottawa rather than moving it to new facilities in Charlottetown.

'PCs need time over Rhodesia, Israel issues'

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Progressive Conservative government is likely to delay action for some time on two controversial issues — recognizing the new Rhodesian government and moving the Canadian embassy in Israel to Jerusalem, External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald said Monday.

MacDonald told reporters after she was sworn in with the new cabinet of Prime Minister Joe Clark that she does not expect a decision on Rhodesian before the Commonwealth heads-of-government meeting Aug. 1-8 in Lasaka, Zambia.

She said the Conservatives stand by their campaign pledge to move the Canadian embassy in Israel to Jerusalem despite angry Arab reaction. But "we will have to have a briefing on what, and how, and when that can be done."

The new Conservative British government is moving toward recognizing the Rhodesian government headed by Bishop Abel Muzorewa. But Nigeria has threatened to break off business contracts with British firms in retalization. The issue promises to split the Commonwealth, if Britain proceeds with recognition.

An Arab spokesman indicated in Ottawa last month that if the government shifted its embassy in Israel to Jerusalem, the Arabs would have to strike back at Canada. He would not say how.

MacDonald, a former lecturer at Queen's University and party official, is a graduate of the National Defence College where she studied international relations. She joked that she might begin her job by jogging over to the external affairs building Tuesday.

Martial Asselin, minister for the Canadian International Development Agency, said the new government "might try to increase our contributions to foreign countries" but he wanted to discuss this further with cabinet.

Stevens has civil service axe poised

By RON CLINGEN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The new political boss of the public service believes he has Canadians on his side as he prepares to trim the cost and size of the government bureaucracy.

Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens says his newly acquired portfolio is "now in vogue" and "I think I'll be cheered from coast-to-coast in the name of restraint."

Although touted for the past two years as a probable finance minister in a Conservative cabinet, Stevens was handed the treasury board instead and insisted he was "not really disappointed."

At his side as minister of state, with treasury board responsibility will be 29-year-old Perrin Beatty, who represents the southwestern Ontario riding of Wellington-Dufferin-Simcoe.

Beatty's attention will be focussed specifically on the findings of the Lambert Commission on Financial Management and Accountability and on his party's proposed "sunset" legislation which would automatically end the lifespan of government departments or agencies once they had outlived their usefulness.

"Ten years ago, big spending programs were in style," Stevens recalled. "But that's not the case now."

The York-Peel MP said he tends to think the Liberal government was right in its effort to tie public service salaries to those in the private sector.

But the new minister said he wants to probe all sides of a variety of public serviie issues, including bargaining rights and the right to strike.

"We will certainly seek input from the public service," he stressed, adding he thought it would be premature to make any specific comments at this point."

"This is a very happy time to be president of the Treasury Board," Stevens continued. "The reports are in. Now is the time for action and we are going to get results."

He referred specifically to the Lambert Commission report, the D'Avignon report on merit principle, and the appointment last year of a comptroller-general to keep a grip on spending.

Stevens said he is already considering opening up his department's activities to the public through formal news conferences.

Prime Minister Joe Clark and Governor-General Edward Schreyer (centre) pose with new cabinet

OTTAWA (CP) — The last Conservative prime minister had only qualified approval for the cabinet appointed Monday by Joe Clark, the new Tory leader.

John Diefenbaker said some of Clark's cabinet ministers are good but "one or two are entering departments of which they have no knowledge."

He was acid about the use of senators in the cabinet and the appointment of defeated candidate Robert de Cotret to the Senate and an important cabinet post.

"Those who are elected should have had primary consideration," he said.

He said it had been fully understood he would not be a member of the cabinet.

About par for course: Levesque

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque said Monday that Quebec representation in the new federal cabinet was "the maximum and the minimum that the province could expect," considering the Tories' poor showing here.

Levesque said it was clear Prime Minister Joe Clark wanted cabinetrepresentation proportionate to the strength of his party across Canada.

He said he is pleased with the appointment of Senator Jacques Flynn as justice minister, and impressed with the prime minister's choice of Flora MacDonald as Canada's first woman external affairs minister.

Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan said the number of Quebecers in the cabinet could be increased by the fall, allowing Clark more time to attract the best talent available for the job of representing the province.

Jamie William Ramsey, 595 Gorge Road East, pleaded guilty to armed robbery in connection with a holdup Sunday afternoon at a James Bay grocery store, robbery with threats of violence in connection with the May 28 holdup at Freddy The Freeloaders, 1537 Fort, a break-in at a blacksmith shop on Government and possession of a stolen pickup truck from the break-in.

"I've had a lot of difficulties," Ramsey began. "Unfortunately, I like to drink.

"Lord, I'm tired. I've blown everything. I'm asking for help. I don't want to blow my life."

In the Sunday robbery, Ramsey was dressed in a grey jogging jacket and blue jeans when he pulled a knife on a woman clerk at the Niagara Grocery, 579 Niagara. He then scooped about $100 from the till and ran. The daughter of the woman victim chased Ramsey on foot and noted the licence number of the stolen pickup truck.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told of the same pattern in both holdups. As in the Sunday robbery, Ramsey picked up a carton of milk and asked for cigarettes before making his move on the clerk at Freddy The Freeloaders. In that holdup, Ramsey placed a hand in a pocket and poked it at the victim, saying, "Quick, open up the till or I'll put this through you."

After he was handed $610.24 in cash from the till, Ramsey then ordered Charles Griffiths to hand over his wallet. After taking $23 out of the wallet, Ramsey suddenly handed the money back and ordered Griffiths to lie on the floor before escaping.

The break-in at Zaccarelli and Sons Blacksmiths, 2315 Government, also occurred Sunday, court was told.

Ramsey admitted he was on parole which was scheduled to end Aug. 31 this year. He said he was doing well at a hairdressing school until he began drinking. He also admitted that the money from the robberies was to purchase heroin. He said he didn't tell prison authorities about his drinking problem because it was "too demeaning, too belittling."

Ramsey's criminal record dates back to Sept. 19, 1973, in Vancouver when he was fined $250 for common assault.

Ramsey said there are no medical facilities in the penitentiary to treat alcoholism but Ostler reminded him that he never notified prison authorities that he had the problem so that they could treat it.

The judge remanded Ramsey for sentencing.

Two men charged with a drug store break-in last Friday and possession of stolen drugs were remanded to Friday to fix a date for a preliminary hearing.

Steven Prescott, 27, no fixed address, and Peter Vandermeer, 25, of 63 Spectacle Lake Trailer Park, are charged with breaking and entering Western Drug Mart, 1913 Sooke Road, and possession of stolen property.

Both elected trial by judge and jury but requested a remand to obtain counsel.

A 19-year-old U.S. Army private from Fort Lewis, Wash., was released on $750 cash bail and remanded to June 25 for a preliminary hearing.

Duty legal aid lawyer John Hills elected trial by judge and jury on Shirer's behalf.

* * *

Robbery-beating nets three years

A young man who beat and robbed an 83-year-old woman in Esquimalt last December was sentenced in county court Monday to three years in jail.

W.J. Kennedy, 19, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of robbery with violence in connection with the beating of Julia Knoll at her home Dec. 3.

Two other charges read before Judge E.J.C. Stewart, and dealing with the same circumstances, were stayed by the Crown.

Randy G. Macfarlane, 21, pleaded guilty to trafficking in marijuana March 13 near Duncan, and was placed on probation for two years when sentence was suspended.

Paperworkers warn Mac-Blo

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The paperworkers' union in British Columbia says any attempt by MacMillan Bloedel to reopen a strikebound mill in Saint John, N.B., with supervisory personnel would mean interruption of current negotiations with the union in B.C.

Art Gruntman, western vice-president of the Canadian Paperworkers' Union, said Monday the firm had confirmed a plan to run the Saint John mill with about 100 supervisory personnel.

About 550 union members there have been on strike since April 10 and without a contract for close to a year, Gruntman said.

"We're not going to let the company pick off one local of our union at a time. If they want to fight, they'll have to fight us all at once. We don't appreciate company strike-breaking."

Gruntman said any decision to strike the 13 B.C. mills would have to be made by the 7,500 members of the union's 18 B.C. locals now negotiating for a new contract to replace one expiring June 30.

A company spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said though the plan existed, negotiations with the Saint John local had resumed and no attempt would be made to reopen the mill while talks are in progress.

Body returned

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — The body of Dora Block, a British-Israeli woman killed by agents of then-President Idi Amin following the Entebbe skyjack rescue operation two years ago, was flown to Israel on Sunday. Mrs. Block was left behind in a Uganda hospital when passengers from an Air France jetliner hijacked by Palestinian guerrillas were rescued by Israeli commandos.

Fishing charges dropped

Criminal charges have been dropped against a Victoria fisherman scheduled to stand trial in Seattle on a charge of fishing within the United States' 200-mile fishery zone, the U.S. Attorney's office said Monday.

A stipulation for dismissal of a forfeiture against property, a civil action, also was signed by a lawyer representing Donald M. Hoadley, said Bruce Rifkin, chief deputy of the U.S. Clerk's Office.

Dismissal of the forfeiture involved Hoadley agreeing to turn over to the government $3,000 of the $3,800 proceeds of a fish sale, Rifkin said. Hoadley was allowed to keep the remaining $800.

Hoadley, captain of the 37-foot Pat T. II, was arrested two weeks ago off Cape Flattery and about one mile inside the U.S. international boundary, said Steve Schroeder, assistant U.S. attorney.

Following Hoadley's arrest, 200 salmon were seized and sold, with the proceeds disposed of according to the stipulation.

Last Wednesday, in an appearance before U.S. Magistrate John Weinberg, Hoadley had pleaded innocent to the criminal charge.

Mother tells jury of intruder

A mother told a B.C. Supreme Court jury Monday she was awakened by an intruder shortly before finding her blood-smeared four-year-old daughter in their apartment in the early hours of Dec. 21, 1978.

Brenda MacBon was the first Crown witness in the trial of Kenneth Andrew Burgess, charged with attempted murder of Elizabeth Marie MacBon, and causing bodily harm with intent to wound, maim or disfigure.

The trial before Mr. Justice Hugh Legg is expected to continue through this week.

MacBon told the court she had been out for the evening Dec. 20, leaving her child and a friend's baby with her regular sitter. She said she returned and sometime after midnight the other child's father came to pick up his daughter.

When he left the MacBon apartment, the hall door appeared to be closed but was not locked. MacBon said she had closed her bedroom door.

About 3 a.m. she said her bedroom door was rattled, and thinking it was her daughter, she reached out and pulled the door open.

Instead of the daughter she saw the accused standing about six feet from her in the living room.

"I said, what are you doing in here? Get out."

She said Burgess replied: "I have to get my shoes."

MacBon testified she told Burgesss again to leave before she called police and he responded: '"Just a minute, I have to get my shoes,". He then left.

When she heard the door slam, MacBon said she got up to check Elizabeth, who was not in her bed.

"I heard her breathing. I put my hand down and touched her and she was icy cold."

The child was lying on the floor unclothed, partly under the bed and a dresser. Her mouth and nose were bleeding and her bloodstained underpants and nightie were beside her.

MacBon called police and an ambulance took the child to hospital.

She told the court she had heard no sounds from the child's room.

Meet a creative curator

elizabeth forbes

Its an exciting challenge.

That's the way Margaret Bell sees her recent appointment as curator of a decorative arts department at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

"The potential here is terrific," she tells you. "I look forward to building up a permanent display of silver, porcelains, glass and furniture — in fact, everything that isn't fine art — that will be of interest to everyone who enters the gallery."

At present she is arranging her first decorative arts show, the Ann and Joseph Pearson collection of 19th century porcelains recently acquired by the gallery, and that she expects will open around June 11.

Looking ahead Miss Bell envisions the planning and arranging of many more such exhibitions as she works to build the permanent collection.

Victoria homes are full of marvellous things in the decorative arts field, she believes.

"We're interested in those things, and in collections, large or small."

Further ahead, but even more exciting is a plan that, like the decorative arts ideas, was born in the mind of art gallery director, Roger Boulet.

It is to turn the Spencer galleries into a series of fully furnished period rooms featuring the gracious living of the 19th century.

She was born in Victoria, attended Norfolk House and St. Margaret's private schools, spent two years in Switzerland and England, then returned here for two years at University of Victoria.

A four year honor course at Edinburgh University came next. There she gained her MA in history.

"That experience is helping me now," she tells you.

"The study of history demands continuous research. Decorative arts will also demand much research, and I'm ready for it."

Miss Bell also gives credit for a good deal of her knowledge of decorative arts to a Sotheby works of Art course she took in London, England.

"Day after day we went out to museums and art galleries to study the collections and to hear talks by experts on the various subjects.

"For instance, at the Victoria and Albert Museum we did 18th century glass. It was total immersion. We looked at it, listened to the talks and talked about it ourselves."

Further experience was gained in London art galleries where she worked for a time before returning to Victoria in 1976.

"That gave me the practical experience of dealing with the public as well as doing research."

About a year-and-a-half ago Margaret Bell went to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

"Officially I had the title of extension officer," she explains. "Unofficially I also filled in as education officer, and I'm still doing that to some extent."

Extension work included arranging small exhibitions at up-Island schools and communities, travelling with some of those showings and giving talks in connection with them.

As extension officer Miss Bell also arranged several exhibitions in the art gallery, including the present Victoria Through Artists' Eyes, 1845-1979, in the Sylvia and Colin Graham Gallery, that will be there until July 15.

Educational work entails providing volunteers who take school children and other interested groups around the gallery, with authentic material for talks they give on these conducted tours.

It also includes filling in as a guide on occasions, and giving talks herself.

From now on, of course, it is her work as curator of decorative arts that will hold top place in Miss Bell's busy life.

"Its an exciting challenge," she repeats, "and I have accepted it!"

Elderly parents neglected

"There are elderly mothers in lodges in the city who haven't seen their children for years," Grimsley told a citizens' advisory board to the Metropolitan Calgary Foundation, which operates 14 lodges. Grimsley is a member of the board.

He said about half the elderly residents of local lodges don't get enough attention from their immediate family.

"If you get really confidential with these people regarding their family they usually wind up in tears."

Senior citizens organizations try to fill in but blood is thicker than water. He said neglect intensifies the loneliness that comes with old age.

Grimsley concedes that the busy 40-year-old son with a wife and two teen-aged children has his own problems.

But the average parent spends 30 years caring for children "and if the children can't afford to at least see the parent once a week it's a poor reward for all the years they've given."

"There comes a day when the adult children themselves will become elderly and then the enormity of their neglect of their own parents becomes very apparent and real."

Children soon to vanish?

TORONTO (CP) — Households with children now are a minority in the province, a social planner says.

And by 1991, only 26 per cent of the population will be 19 and under, compared with 40.3 per cent in 1966, R. Marvyn Norvick of the Meropolitan Toronto social planning council told a conference of the Ontario Association of Children's mental health centres.

In Toronto, one out of five families is headed by one parent and 87 per cent of these family heads are women — "and over half of these live in poverty," Novick said.

"So far we are failing the test of being a civilized community," he told the 300 social workers, teachers, doctors and others attending the opening session of a two-day meeting.

Novick said organizations such as the one he was addressing should be bringing up their grievances against current restraints as a single group. As long as these bodies deal with such things on their own, "the public assumes this is another game of interest politics."

He told the conference that the professional groups should be collectively pointing out that there are other choices.

More adults flash silver smiles

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — The glint of a silver smile is no longer the exclusive preserve of the young. More adults every year are flashing mouths full of metal.

But unlike children, they're doing it willingly.

Dr. Victor Schacher, a Brantford orthodontist, predicts that 50 per cent of his patients will be adults within three years. They totalled 33 per cent last year compared with five per cent less than 10 years ago.

"Lots of adults whose parents weren't able to afford orthodontics now find themselves in a position to pay for treatment," he says. "Good-looking teeth are something they've always wanted and they're now getting them."

Technological advances that take much of the discomfort out of wearing braces have added to their appeal, he says. The traditional variety consists of discs that circle and separate each tooth, much like a ring.

But many orthodontists now use stainless steel, glued-on brackets that adhere only to the front of the tooth.

"With the advent and refinement of glue-ons, the discomfort is about 10 per cent of what it once was with the other braces," Schacher says. "Nothing goes between the teeth, so it's not uncomfortable."

Another advantage is ease of cleaning. The new brackets don't trap food particles that promote decay.

Two local dentists can vouch for the increased use of braces among adults — they both wear them.

Dr. Boyd Van Allen says the idea occurred to him during his first year of dental school. His secondary teeth had grow in crooked and the back ones didn't meet properly, but he couldn't afford the process until last year, his third year out of school.

"The crooked teeth were more noticeable to me than to anybody else," he says.

"When crooked teeth are growing in, the look isn't that important to a child. But as you grow older it becomes more important."

Van Allen says he felt strange sitting in an orthodontist's chair when the patient beside him was half his age.

"You get used to that feeling," he says. "And besides that, adolescents are realizing that it's not unusual to see adults wearing braces."

The dentist says his own adult patients probably are encouraged to have their teeth straightened when they see him wearing braces.

"I think if I recommend orthodontic treatment to someone my age, they will consider it because I'm living evidence that adult orthodontics can be done."

Dr. Mike Veer, who has been wearing traditional braces for four of his 26 years, agrees.

"I think my wearing braces makes a difference when I'm advising patients to have treatment," he says. "If I had crooked teeth, I have a feeling they would be skeptical about treatment.

"I can see the need for adult orthodontics and hopefully I can convey this to someone who needs it. I think it is important enough for me and would wholeheartedly recommend it to others."

By L. L. Coleman, MD

There is a history of arteriosclerosis in my family. I am 46, and already seem to have some signs that I am developing it, too. Once the process sets in, is it possible to control it and get the blood to return to normal? — Mr. J.W.

DEAR MR. W.:

Scientists have, for years, been studying the possibility of reversing the arteriosclerotic process in the blood vessels. Some reports issue from laboratories stating that in a few instances experimental animals have, indeed, been successfully "reversed."

Yet there has not been enough evidence to suggest that the process of arteriosclerosis can be reversed in humans.

The real hope, therefore, lies in attacking the problem of arteriosclerosis so that it will not progress. There is very valid and scientific proof about this. It is believed that people with your history should be kept on a regime of weight control with a careful control of cholesterol and triglycerides in the blood. Abstinence from tobacco is of extreme importance. Regular exercise is part of an active and useful treatment program.

The ulitimate hope of modern medicine is to establish patterns of living that will prevent the early onset of the arteriosclerotic process. More and more information is being accumulated that points to the ultimate target of delaying the process of aging and the progress of arteriosclerosis.

Patients with severe illnesses, who are losing weight, are now being given the advantage of a "feeding technique" known as "hyperalimentation."

A plastic tube is inserted in the vein and left in place while large quantities of high caloric fluid is poured into the body. The tube can be left in position for a few weeks, giving the body the chance to revitalize itself. Then, when the patient is on the road to recovery, the tube is removed.

This is a more complex procedure than the usual intravenous treatment so commonly employed for a short period of time. Hyperalimentation is an important modern concept.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Saul Levine, psychiatrist; Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I'm a 14-year-old girl. I have been sexually active with my boyfriend and he is insisting I take birth control pills. I talked to my Mom but she said "No daughter of mine is taking birth control pills." But that means I might get pregnant. Can you tell me of a birth control centre that will give me the pill at my age andwithout a yes from parents?

ANSWER: There are lots of people who would agree with your mother that you are too young to take birth control pills. Let me remind you that more than 300 girls your age are having babies every year in Canada.

If you are having sex it is extremely important that you use some method of birth control. There are methods available at the pharmacy without a prescription and you or your boyfriend can buy condoms or contraceptive foam.

There are clinics where girls your age can get contraceptives. I would advise you and your boyfriend to go to the clinic at the hospital for sick children and talk to a counsellor. It is important to talk about more than birth contol. The decision you have made and the relationship you have with you boyfriend can be discussed also. There is more to a sexual relationship than avoiding pregnancy.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I'm a 15-year-old girl. I don't get along famously with my mother. Almost every day we get into an argument. She is alone, working to raise my sister and me. I understand she's under great pressure, but she will not understand I care about her. Sometimes I wish I could run away to a safe place.

At home she calls me every possible name up to a hooker. (So you can see she would never call me an angel.) That really bugs me. I go to one of the best schools in the city. I don't drink or smoke. I'm certainly not on drugs and I get excellent marks in school. What right does she have to make me feel so worthless and miserable? It has gotten so that when I'm around people I'm ashamed of myself, or I question myself. Anyway, right now I'm not going to try to please her ever again. It ends up miserable anyway. But why does she treat my sister like a princess?

ANSWER: I sympathize with your plight. Sometimes parents can be very nasty to their kids and not even realize what they are doing. You seem like an understanding individual, who even tries to be sensitive to your mother's needs. You are empathetic — you try to know what it feels like to be in her position. You recognize that your mother's situation is difficult, and that may be part — but only part — of the reason she is so critical of you. She is under a great deal of stress.

But this is obviously not the whole story. You say that she is kind to your sister while she is miserable to you. I assume that you've questioned yourself to try to ascertain what role you're playing in all of this. Good marks, enjoyment of school, no drugs or booze — it certainly sounds like you are not a "problem child." And yet she is even cruel at times.

If it is at all possible, I would show your letter to your mother, and tell her just how hurt you feel. It may be a revelation to her. If you can't bring yourself to speak to her openly, or she is rejecting, perhaps you could confide in a close relative — an aunt or uncle, who might be able to speak with her. Your school guidance counsellor, family doctor or minister would all be willing to help you, perhaps by speaking to your mother.

DEAR DR. COTTER: I'm the second youngest in my family and even though I'm only 15 my parents don't care about me and don't love me. For a long time both my parents and friends have shut me out.

Now I'm alone and have no one to bring my problems to. Sometimes I feel like running away from home or just killing myself so I won't be a burden to anyone, especially my parents. I've tried very hard to talk it over with friends but they don't bother to listen to me. I guess it's because I'm unimportant.

ANSWER: You certainly need friendship, and more than I can give you through the written word.

However, there are some things in your letter I want to draw your attention to. You don't want to be a burden to anyone and you think that perhaps you are unimportant. Both these statements reveal that a considerable portion of your problem is in your own mind. I do not mean that I disbelieve what you say about your parents and your friends: What you say about them could be quite true and yet make much less difference if your own attitude were different. If you were aggressive, or even conceited, you would not notice their indifference. But, instead, you are sensitive and self-conscious.

This is a good way to be and a good start towards being a wonderful person. You must build on that. Then, remember that the great value of a sensitive person is the ability to listen to other people and make other people feel wanted and cared for.

I am 48 and have not had a period in a year. Can I still get pregnant?

NO JOKING MATTER

DEAR JOKE: Even though your chances for getting pregnant are slim, I advise you to take precautions on every conceivable occasion!

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for years and I really enjoy it, but I do believe you have lost your marbles.

You ask your readers to write and let you know if they see DEAR ABBY T-shirts, nightgowns, or any other item for sale bearing your name, saying it's being done without your permission, and that unless you put a stop to it you will lose your copyrighted name. You ask us to let you know the name and address of any store carrying such items, but you don't give us YOUR address! Sure, we can send it to the newspaper (like I'm doing) but it takes more time and we can't be sure the letter will ever reach you. So please, Abby, will you print your address? Thank you.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Move over. Now we're BOTH frustrated. YOU didn't give me YOUR address! MY address is: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. But all mail addressed to me in care of your newspaper will reach me.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 11-year-old boy with a problem. My father died so long ago I don't even remember him, but Mom has a man living here at our house. He has been living here for about a year. Most all my friends know that my Mom is a widow, but what do I say when someone asks whose car is parked in our garage.

NO ANSWER

DEAR NO ANSWER: Don't lie. Tell them the car belongs to a friend of your mother's. It does, and he is.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a physician who has just passed his 50th birthday.

He tells all his male patients who reach 50 to slow down. If they smoke, he orders them to quit, but HE's a three-pack-a-day man.

He puts all his overweight patients on diets, but HE is considerably overweight himself and can't stay on a diet for two days. He insists that daily exercise is a MUST, but HE doesn't exercise at all.

He says that an annual vacation is essential to good health, but HE hasn't had a vacation in six years. And this will floor you: He wants all his patients to have a complete physical checkup every year, but HE hasn't had one for 10 years!

What's wrong with him, and how can I get through to him?

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He's human. He finds advice much easier to give than to take. You can get through to him (maybe) by insisting that HE consult a colleague for a checkup. If he refuses, ask him to keep paying those life insurance premiums, so that you and your next husband can retire in comfort.

DEAR ABBY: Since I read so much about mothers who can't get their teenagers to keep their rooms picked up, I must share this amusing incidient with you:

My home is always neat — with the exception of my 15-year-old daughter's bedroom, which is a disaster. Drawers open, clothes thrown everywhere, bed unmade, etc.

I fussed, threatened, punished, but to no avail. Finally, I just have up and kept her bedroom door closed so I wouldn't have to look at the mess.

Last week our house was robbed. For some strange reason, the burglars took only the television sets and cameras. The police came out to investigate. They asked me to accompany them while they checked every room in the house to find out if anything else was missing.

B.A., BSc. available with open learning

Course writers for the Open Learning Institute created by Education Minister Pat McGeer have started work on university degree arts and science programs.

The institute was established by the province last June to put together home study packages in university, adult education and career, technical and vocational areas of study.

OLI has decided what subjects it will offer and approved the major elements of design in degree programs.

It has also decided what transfer credits it will accept from other universities and community colleges.

According to Dr. John Bottomley, institute research officer, more than 2,000 students who studied at community colleges have not gone on to complete their education at university.

Bottomley says it is safe to assume these people want to continue their studies as soon as local programs are available.

That's why most of the early courses developed by OLI will be third- and fourth-year level, with a smaller mumber devoted to first- and second-year programs.

Three pilot courses will be started on a limited enrolment basis in September. Courses in beginning psychology and third-year economics have been acquired from Athabasca University, an open learning instutute in Edmonton, and a senior English course on the Victorian novel has been adapted from the British Open University program.

These courses fit into the OLI degree structure and are recognized by B.C. universities.

At OLI headquarters in Richmond writers are preparing 15 additional courses which the institute hopes to have ready by January, 1980.

Most of the courses are designed to be completed in a four-month semester and will carry a credit of three semester hours. Some senior courses will have six semester hours credit and can be completed in two semesters.

To get an OLI degree, a student will have to devote 18 to 21 semester hours in each of two subject disciplines and the rest of the senior courses will be optional or elective.

A student completing a B.A. degree in economics and history must take at least 10 courses in each of those subjects with four courses the first two years and six or seven courses in the third and fourth year.

The OLI degree will be less specialized than one of B.C.'s universities because the institute doesn't have the facilities to offer a wide assortment of undergraduate courses.

Eventual target is to develop a series of 90 to 100 courses over five years in areas of greatest demand.

Experience at the open university in Britain indicates courses need revision every five years, so program development will be a continual process.

University programs will eventually be offered in biology, history, computing science, mathematics, economics, psychology, English, sociology and geography.

Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission | Conseil de la radiodiffusion et des télécommunications canadiennes

Public Announcement

In a Public Announcement dated 5 January 1979, the Canadian Radio-Television and telecommunications Commission stated that it had become "increasingly aware of a growing public opposition to the broadcasting by private stations of commercial messages promoting feminine hygiene products on television." The Public Announcement concluded:

> "While the Commission considers that the final responsibility for acceptance of any advertising material lies with the individual broadcasters, it will immediately initiate discussions with broadcasters and the appropriate advertisers to determine the most feasible method for resolving this issue".

The commission has noted that the Canadian Association of Broadcasters recently announced a new industry code to which television commercials for feminine hygiene products must conform. An important requirement of the code is that, prior to station acceptance, feminine hygiene commercials must be approved by a committee of the Advertising Standards Council which will include female representatives from the general public.

The Commission will observe closely the effectiveness of this code in meeting the concerns expressed by the public.

Student awarded $500

DUNCAN — Jeffrey Donald Sutherland, a Grade 12 student at Shawnigan Lake school, has won $500 in scholarships from the attorney-general's ministry for his work on drinking and driving awareness.

Higher telephone rates from CRTC decision?

Allowing CN-CP Telecommunications to interconnect with Bell Canada will result in higher rates for residential telephone subscribers, a union spokesman said Monday.

Bob Donnelly, president of the Telecommunications Workers Union, said his members are concerned about the long-term implications of the decision.

The Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission ruled last week in favor of interconnection which will allow CN-CP to use the facilities of Bell Canada to transfer messages from and between CN-CP customers.

TWU economic researcher Phillip Legg said the CRTC is going to have to re-think some of its policies regarding residential subscriber rates.

"Prior to this decision residential subscriber rates have been subsidized in part by the profits from other parts of the telephone company's operation.

Dances and crafts Folkfest features

Folkfest, sponsored by the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria, celebrates Canada Week with a series of events highlighting the cultures making up the country.

This year's theme will be a salute to International Year of the Child.

Other events and displays will be staged around the city during the week.

Preschools' open house

The Victoria branch of the B.C. Teachers' Preschool Association is sponsoring an open house of Greater Victoria preschools Saturday to celebrate International Year of the Child.

The open house will take place from 10 a.m. to 12 noon to give parents and interested members of the community the chance to become familiar with the various services available for young children.

There are more than 90 licenced programs for preschool children, serving 2,000 families. Daycare centres, nurseries and co-operative centres will all be participating in the open house and will be explaining their programs.

Only one of the 10 new shows is Canadian — a production entitled Whatever Turns You On, which stars Les Lye caught between youngsters and a different rock band each week.

Four of the other new series are also comedies, four are adventure-dramas and the other is Buck Rogers, with Gil Gerrard as the space hero.

— Hart in San Francisco — Ron Moodie as a Scotland Yard inspector with culture shock.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♠	2♣	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — seven of spades.

A declarer plays many hands where it is much more dangerous for him to have one defender on lead than the other. It follows that if declarer has a genuine choice between which of two different methods of play to adopt — one of which avoids the dangerous opponent, while the other does not — he should choose to steer clear of the "dangerous" player.

Here is a typical case where South is in three notrump and West leads a spade. Declarer wins West's seven with the nine and observes that his best source of tricks lies in the club suit.

South can play the king of clubs at trick two, planning to finesse against the missing queen at trick three on the basis that West, who opened the bidding, is more likely to have the queen than East. Or he can play a club to the ace at trick two, planning to lead the jack next and finesse, on the basis that if West wins with the queen he will be unable to prevent South from running nine tricks.

But both these methods of play are incorrect! In the actual case, declarer would fail against best defense even if he took the second-round club finesse successfully through East. East's four clubs to the queen would sink the contract.

However, South can assure the contract by choosing a slightly better line of play. He leads a diamond to the queen at trick two and finesses the jack of clubs at trick three. If the finesse loses to West, South has nine sure tricks; if the finesse wins, South repeats the finesse at trick four with equally deadly effect.

Arranging the play so as to avoid the more dangerous opponent eventually proves to be very beneficial.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 6
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Appearances are deceiving. Know it and act as if aware of it. It might seem you have suffered a setback. But you're rebounding, on the way back. A legal decision could boomerang in your favor. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Accent on basic issues, getting job done, being specific. Dependents, pets might seem to "converge." maintain balance, humor. Pressures are relieved. Opportunity exists to expand horizons. Money picture is brighter than originally anticipated.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Imprint style. Permit others to become aware of your individual signature. Member of opposite sex is drawn to you and makes no secret of it. Another Gemini, a Virgo and Sagittarian figure prominently. Significant change occurs, could involve writing, travel.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Accent on conclusions, security, property, domestic decisions, value of home, possible changes in connection with residence. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. You gain through diplomacy, not extravagance.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Avoid spreading efforts in too many directions. Be verastile without scattering your forces. Get concepts, formats on paper. Be "in touch." Ideas abound; key is to be selective. Individual with "weight problem" plays a very visible role.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Money, production, dedication figure in scenario. Your investment in property or ideal surges to forefront. Relationship is "serious." If not aware of it — wake up! Your past catches up — and this could be favorable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You gain added recognition, obtain better deals where supply, distribution, price and display are concerned. Another Libran — and an Aries — could dominate scenario. Contract, partnership proposal could be on horizon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): You get fresh opportunity for new start, the initiation of a project. You get chance to correct past mistakes. If you rejected love in past . . . a rare "moment" again materializes. There is something almost magical about what is to occur!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Accent on confidential data, the knowledge of when to make a move, attraction, glamour and aura of success. Cancer, Capricorn and Aquarius natives figure prominently. You could give dazzling display of extrasensory perception.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Elevate standing; be confident enough to know that you're on right track. You receive offers which reflect recent efforts, contacts, inquiries. Gemini, Scorpio, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. You get verification of views.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): There are some blocks to communication. Find out what is needed to get message, product properly distributed. There is "escape hatch" from morass of red tape, officialdom, petty persons who are bitter, envious. You'll win!

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Job gets done — your efforts, views are recognized. Accent on communication, getting information concerning rent, lease, credits and debits. Special relationship is highlighted. Nothing is apt to occur halfway.

IF JUNE 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are charming, talented, diplomatic and your voice is very special. You have instinctive knowledge of language, communication, psychology. You are artistic, creative and have a "sweet tooth." You made a new start last year. Now, you are digging in, establishing territorial rights. June could be your most significant month of 1979. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. Opposite sex finds you attractive — you have powers of persuasion. You appreciate luxury, art objects, jewelry.

STOCK LIQUIDATION SALE, selling out our Antiques and Olde English Furnishings, due to various circumstances; decrease in the value of the Can. $, increased freight costs, increased cost of goods in England coupled with diminishing supply, make it impossible to continue offering you good solid woods at prices usually less than pressed sawdust and chrome. We are therefore changing the format of our store to more modern used furnishings and appliances. In order to implement this changeover, we must sell off all present stock. Sale on now. It's time to prune flowering shrubs

jack beastall

A job that should be completed as soon as possible is the pruning of the spring flowering shrubs.

The many different genera and species grown in local gardens would make a list too long for this column, but those which fit into this group flower sometime between early April and the end of June.

There are two reasons for pruning as flowers fade.

This year's flowers are carried on new growths made last summer which ripend in late summer and fall. If pruning had been done in March when the summer flowering group is pruned, this year's flower growths would have been cut off.

The second reason is to obtain strong new growths this year to give an outstanding display of bloom next year on a compact shrub, and in some instances to prevent plant nutrients from being wasted on the production of seeds for which we have no use.

It is not always possible, nor desirable, to remove all the growths which have borne flowers, since some shrubs flower over most of the stems, especially on young plants.

The gardener is guided by the position of strong new shoots which are generally visible by the time flowers are fading. The cut is then made just above the new growth.

A spiraea prunifolia, which flowers for the entire length of new growth made the previous year, had three-quarters of each growth removed 10 days ago; it now is a mass of new six to eight inch growths.

While fairly severe pruning is practised on young shrubs from the first year in the garden, it is not necessary on established shrubs, say eight to ten years in the garden.

These, although pruned after flowering, have the oldest growths removed at soil level, and the remaining growths shortened to keep the shrubs within bounds.

The complete removal of the oldest growths encourages more new growths from the roots to replace the ones removed and results in a greater profusion of flowers.

Many leggy unpruned brooms are lost in winter low temperatures which split the exposed stems. Keeping a good growth of foliage low on the plants helps in preventing winter losses.

The same applies to lavender plants which are pruned after the lavender stems have been gathered in July. But this is one of the last shrubs to get any form of pruning other than removal of spent flower heads.

A few of the spring blooming shrubs which are common to most gardens are spiraeas, most of which have finished blooming now; the philadelphus now in flower; and early blooming weigelas, not forgetting the cultivated brooms now a mass of seedpods if left unpruned.

It is also wise to remove the seedpods from the Laburnum trees, especially if young children frequent the garden. This tree is also known as the golden-chain tree, from its long racemes of golden flowers which form black pea-like pods of seeds.

Many newcomers to this part of Vancouver Island are not familiar with these early flowering shrubs, therefore tend to prune them in fall as is common with the summer flowering shrubs grown in areas of severe low winter temperatures.

Hospital's role shift

DUNCAN — Chemainus General Hospital will outlive its usefulness in the near future, warns hospital programs director P.M. Breel in a letter to Martin Lukaitis, chairman of the Cowichan Valley Regional Hospital Board.

More use of other hospitals in the area may force a different role for the 80-year-old Chemainus facility.

Breel said he has had discussions with Lukaitis and they agree the hospital should consider increasing day care surgery facilities and redesigning some of its beds for long-term care use.

Breel said it may be necessary to increase the number of maternity care beds in Duncan from 11 to 14

B.C. Pen guard faces charges

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A guard at the British Columbia Penitentiary was charged Monday with perjury and aiding in an escape attempt after a five-month investigation into allegations made during the trial of two prisoners' rights activists.

Betsy Wood and Gay Hoon were acquitted on a charge of attempted prison break, laid after five prisoners tried to escape from the pentitentiary in January, 1978.

CanCel tree farm licence reduced

Canadian Cellulose Co. has agreed to a reduction of its tree farm licence located on forest lands in the Skeena and Nass River valleys, the forests ministry says.

The ministry said the licence has been reduced to about one million hectares from 2.7 million while the annual allowable cut is reduced to about 1.2 million cubic metres of wood from 2 million.

Parksville women killed in crash

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Aurea Marie Manz, 42, of Parksville, was killed in a two-car accident Monday night about three kilometres east of here.

Police said the car Manz was driving went out of control and collided with an oncoming car.

'Girl given adult dose of achromycin'

ALERT BAY (CP) — A former nurse at the hospital where an 11-year-old Indian girl died said Monday she noticed the girl was being given an adult dose of the antibiotic achromycin the day before her death.

Heather George was testifying at an inquest into the death of Renee Smith who died of a ruptured appendix and peritonitis Jan. 22, five days after she was taken to hospital complaining of severe abdominal pains.

Miss George said she noticed the girl was being given the adult dose on Jan. 21, discussed the matter with the hospital's head nurse and the antibiotic was discontinued.

A pediatrician testified last week that the drugs given to Renee throughout her illness were wrong and succeeded only in masking the symptoms of her illness.

Miss George said Monday she was on call the evening of the girl's death and was surprised to find the girl's doctor pacing the floor in the nurse's station.

Dr. Jack Pickup, the doctor whose practices have become the focal point of the inquest, did not seem to comprehend the situation and seemed exhausted, said Miss George.

She testified that Pickup once had asked her what drugs to use for a cardiac patient and she complained to her head nurse about it because she did not feel it was her position to advise a doctor.

The doctor was not under the influence of alcohol while he was attempting to resuscitate the girl, Miss George said. Pickup later went home briefly, she said, and when he came back she could tell he had been drinking but he was not intoxicated.

Sgt. Glenn Barrie of Alert Bay RCMP, asked if he had observed Pickup under the influence of alcohol on Jan. 24, said the doctor was sufficiently intoxicated to have been impaired under the motor vehicle code.

Negotiators replaced

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Joint Council of Newspaper Unions at Pacific Press has named replacements for its co-chairmen, who resigned in an intra-union squabble over money in contract negotiations.

Harold Dieno of the Typographical Union and Bob Jennings of the Graphic Arts Union replace Phil Needham of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild and Stan Lepper of the Mailers' Union.

Union and management spokesmen have been unavailable for comment on how the dispute is affecting negotiations to end the strike which has halted publication of the Sun and Province.

Sources said Needham and Lepper felt the council had agreed to accept a company wage package providing a top scale of $512 a week in key classifications by the end of 36 months. They resigned during the weekend when other unions in the council sought to negotiate a higher figure.

Union rift widens

The B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council says jurisdictional aggression by the International Woodworkers of America is threatening labor unity.

The council, made up of 15 construction trades unions, has sent an open brief to the Canadian Labor Congress asking for help to protect construction unions' jurisdiction and preserve labor unity.

The jurisdictional dispute involves contractors whose employees are IWA members doing work such as construction of new sawmills and plants, despite a ruling by a labor congress umpire, Dr. Carl Goldenberg, that new construction in the forest industry is properly the jurisdiction of the building trades unions.

ICBC rate reform gets Royal snub

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's plan to eliminate age, sex and marital status from motor vehicle insurance rates is like pricing luxury cars the same as compacts, says Jean Robitaille, president of Royal Insurance Co. of Canada.

Describing the current rate structure as "a proved and proper cost-based pricing system," Robitaille said here Monday 84 per cent of drivers would have to pay 12 per cent more for auto liability insurance, if age were removed as a rating criterion.

Surveys show most motorists agree with the concept of different rates for people of different age, sex or driving habits, he added.

Dock strike closes two mills

Widow wins $100,000

A 59-year-old widow and mother of six has claimed a $100,000 prize in the May 23 Western Express lottery.

Mrs. Irene Goble, who makes $12.96 a day as a part-time cook at the Hampton Street Silver Threads Service, says she plans to continue working for the time being.

She said she promised to stay on the job while the other cook is away on holidays.

After that Goble is uncertain about her plans, although she may spend some of her winnings on a visit to England.

Mrs. Goble came to Canada as a war bride in 1946. Her husband, Boyd, died in 1965.

Her six children are living in Quesnel, Cobble Hill and Kitimat except for Debbie, 18, who remains at home. The oldest child is 34.

Mrs. Goble said she has been buying one or two tickets a week from a pensioner at the Silver Threads centre since she started working there this spring.

She said she was so stunned when she first saw she had a winning number that she kept the ticket for a week, constantly checking to make sure the numbers were correct.

2,500 Island workers made idle by walkout

A stepped-up strike by B.C. longshoremen has closed down two Vancouver Island pulp mills, idling more than 2,500 woods employees.

Members of the International Longshoremen's Union walked off the job Monday crippling seven West Coast ports in a move that may bring federal government intervention.

The 2,500 longshoremen said earlier they wouldn't strike until midnight Wednesday but they jumped the gun.

Union president Bob Peebles said the surprise walkout started at about noon and by midnight Monday night had effectively shut down the ports of Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster, Nanaimo, Prince Rupert, Port Alberni and Chemainus.

Peebles said the decision to move the strike deadline ahead resulted from discontent among members who had rejected three contract offers recommended by their negotiating committee.

The last rejection was by a one-vote margin.

There were no ships in Victoria at the time of the walkout and so the strike has had no immediate effect here.

However, McMillan Bloedel's pulp and paper plant in Port Alberni has been shut down by longshoremen's pickets, putting about 1,260 employees out of work.

The company's pulp and sawmill operation at Harmac has also been shut down resulting in the layoff of more than 1,300 workers.

MacBlo spokesman Tom Williams said from Vancouver it won't take long before the shutdown begins to affect supplies of newsprint.

He said prior to the closure, the paper mills had no inventory and were sending newsprint out to their customers as fast as they made it.

He said four ships were caught behind ILWU picket lines on Vancouver Island.

B.C. Forest Product's operation in Chemainus was operating normally today. There are no ships in for loading and a company spokesman said there aren't any expected in the near future.

Although the main effect of the strike on Vancouver Island will be on the movement of newsprint, lumber and other cargo, the interruption in the movement of wheat will likely be the factor which catches the federal government's attention.

Newly-appointed Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander indicated today that there would be no immediate intervention.

He said in Ottawa that "the public interest must be protected but added the right to strike must also be honored.

Alexander said he is watching the strike closely and it was discussed at today's cabinet meeting.

"I'm being briefed and I'm giving it a lot of thought. What can be done remains to be seen."

Don Mazankowski, responsible for transport and the Canadian wheat board, said: "We want to avert a (long) strike at all possible costs."

Throughout the last Parliament, the Conservatives attacked the outgoing Liberal government for tie-ups in the grain-handling system.

Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon, a federally-appointed conciliation commissioner, has urged the union to put a revised offer to another membership vote.

The revised proposal calls for a pay increase of 90 cents an hour in each year of a three-year contract, but other benefits would bring wages up a total of 30 per cent over the life of the agreement, he said.

"The negotiating committee thought it would be completely insane to put our membership to another vote," Peebles said.

"We held the meetings and because of the unrest we had to do something to deal with it and this is what we did."

An offer by the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association was rejected outright by the union membership. The union's bargaining committee prepared a counter offer which was accepted by the association, only to be rejected by one vote.

New dive taken by $

TORONTO (UPC) — The Canadian dollar has dropped to its lowest point since March after a two-day nosedive triggered by two recent pieces of bad economic news.

The dollar, after trading steadily above the 86-cent (U.S.) mark since March, dropped at one point below 85 cents U.S. Monday after traders had time to react to Friday's disappointing trade figures and Monday's report of a billion-dollar drop in Canada's foreign reserves in May.

In Montreal at noon today the U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 11-100 at $1.1747. In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 2-25 at $0.8513.

Iraqi jets bomb Iran

TEHRAN (UPI) — Four Iraqi Air force jets attacked a west Iranian region with rockets Monday causing heavy damage, Iran's interior minister disclosed today.

Iran has lodged a protest with Iraq over the incident, Interior Minister Ahmad Sadr Haj Syed Javadi told UPI.

It was the worst reported incident along the border since Iran and Iraq reconciled their differences in an agreement reached between the deposed shah and the Iraqi regime in Algiers in March, 1975.

Fire ravages freighter

COPPER HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A fire raged through a 220-metre Canadian Great Lakes freighter for eight hours today and six sailors were missing and feared lost in the burned-out area of the crippled vessel. The other members of the all-Canadian crew took to life rafts.

Witnesses on shore 16 kilometres away said the ship, the Cartiercliffe Hall, looked "like a bonfire" before the blaze burned itself out.

Nineteen crew members of the Cartiercliffe Hall were picked up from life rafts in Lake Superior by two other freighters, the U.S. Coast Guard said. Five men were reported seriously burned and two others were less seriously hurt.

Shortly before the fire was declared out about 1 p.m., two coast guardsmen and the ship's engineer boarded the vessel and found no evidence of the missing men, the coast guard said.

But the boarding party could not immediately approach the still-smouldering engine room, where the fire started and where earlier reports had the missing men, authorities said.

Nearby waters were being searched "in the hope that the men got overboard," one coast guard officer said.

He said the missing men included a porter, two oilers, two deckhands and a helmsman.

Though some earlier coast guard reports had put the number of missing at five, David Blakely, sales and traffic manager for the ship's owner in Montreal, said six were unaccounted for and late in the morning all coast guard units agreed.

Blakely said the crew was made up entirely of Canadians. He could not provide their names or home towns.

The ship was built in 1959 as a deep-sea bulk carrier, he said, and converted to a laker in 1977.

A coast guard medical corpsman, who viewed the ship from a helicopter that helped evacuate the injured, said he believed the interior of the ship was "pretty badly burned."

Gas squeeze worse by 9%

Times News Services

Throughout the U.S. the gasoline squeeze for June apparently will be almost 9 per cent tighter than it was last summer, a proposition that has already sparked hoarding, speculation, violence and an argument over the merits of "moonshine in the gas tank."

The Lundberg Letter, an authoritative petroleum industry newsletter, said deliveries this month from major oil companies will run about 91.4 per cent of the supply available a year ago.

A convoy of 18 trucks circled the Capitol in Washington and other rigs blockaded truck stops around the country Monday as threats of a countrywide truckers strike grew louder.

The independents, who own and operate their own rigs, say they are at the end of the road unless something is done about the cost of diesel fuel.

"We might be here two days, two weeks, or two months," said Henry Douglas, 40, operator of one of about 20 tractor-trailer rigs that parked at Boswell's Truck Stop on U.S. 67 at Newport, Ark. "We can't leave. When you're out of money and out of fuel, you're in trouble."

In addition to cutting the cost of fuel, which they say has soared as high as $1.14 a U.S. gallon — four-fifths of a Canadian gallon — in some areas, the truckers want guaranteed 100 per cent fuel allocations.

Fire forces 747 down at Comox

The aircraft was flying from Seattle to Tokyo when the fire broke out.

The pilot radioed the base about 6:20 a.m., saying he had a fire in the No. 4 starboard outboard engine.

No one was injured.

Manned by a crew of 20, the plane's passengers included 368 military personnel and their dependents.

Capt. Jim Gregory of CFB Comox said the plane's crew and passengers were given customs clearance to remain on the base and another plane is expected to arrive later today.

That's it, says granny after having triplets

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rosemarie Bulych has a lot of experience with big families.

And it's the kind of experience she'll need, because the 41-year-old grandmother of two gave birth to triplets last week.

However, she is not short of help.

"I have eight sisters who have all volunteered their help," she said in an interview Monday.

As well, Mrs. Bulych's daughter Karen, who has two girls aged four and one, lives only three blocks away.

The event was not unexpected as doctors told Mrs. Bulych five months ago that she was going to have triplets, but the birth was still a special occasion in the Bulych household.

"It's wonderful," said husband Paul, 49, a demolition contractor.

"It's going to make our life much better. It's something to be proud of."

The babies, all girls, were born at Vancouver General Hospital on Friday night.

The two smallest infants, who weighed 3 pounds, 14 pounds ounces and 3 pounds, 5 ounces, where in incubators and were expected to remain in hospital for some time. The third girl, who weighed 5 pounds, 4 ounces, is expected to be released at the end of the week.

Mrs. Bulych, who was released from hospital Sunday, credited God for bringing her and the triplets safely through the ordeal.

"We're not religious but we owe it all to God. It's not religion, but it's truth."

The couple, who also have a son, Andrew, 7, at home, said a child was planned.

"This will be it now though," said Bulych.

The girls haven't been named, but the names Rebecca Rose, Pauley Andrea and Rosalie June are being considered, said Mrs. Bulych.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — An early fall budget with implementation of the Progressive Conservative mortgage deductibility program getting top priority, were promised Monday by Finance Minister John Crosbie.

He warned, however, that people may have to wait for some of the other tax cuts promised during the election campaign.

Speaking with reporters shortly after being sworn into Prime Minister Joe Clark's cabinet, the 48-year-old lawyer from St. John's, Nfld., said introduction of a program to allow homeowners to deduct mortgage interest and property taxes is "a political imperative."

"It's the one that the public has taken to its bosom."

But as for Clark's campaign promise of $2 billion in tax cuts for low- and middle-income taxpayers: "I don't consider that in the same league."

"We are committed to all our election promises over a span of time," Crosbie said. But "quite obviously" some things would have to be ruled out in the short term to avoid an increase in the current $12-billion spending deficit.

He said he considers inflation — now running at close to 10 per cent a year — the "No. 1 problem." To increase spending too rapidly could make inflation worse.

But coming from a province of chronic unemployment, he would ensure that spending restraint doesn't aggravate unemployment.

"If some of our programs have to wait then they're going to have to wait," he said. "I'm not going to be pushed around by anybody."

The ministers, sworn into office Monday, beamed with enthusiasm as they approached the stately Langevin Block — vacated during the weekend by Pierre Trudeau — to meet collectively for the first time.

"Is this the place?" quipped Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander as he entered the sandstone building across Wellington Street from Parliament.

Some of the casually dressed ministers carried umbrellas to ward off a light rain and hesitated to answer specific questions on the policies they hope to implement.

"This is day one," said Small Business Minister Ron Huntingdon. "Give us a few weeks to get a grasp on things."

Port Hardy awaits rush with mixed emotions

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Near the northern tip of Vancouver Island lies a quiet community of 4,000 which spends a good part of the year under a blanket of fog.

Port Hardy is a peaceful town, surrounded by heavily-treed hills. The residents are close, working on projects like the conversion of a church into a public library.

For most of the 500 people who watched the ceremony that accompanied Premier Bill Bennett's opening of the new $3 million ferry terminal at nearby Bear Cove, last Thursday was a big day.

A school band played with gusto and 700 box lunches were devoured by school children. Adults, meanwhile, polished off mounds of sandwiches and other goodies, provided by B.C. Ferries.

But in the midst of all the celebrations there were those who came to watch what they believe is the end of their way of life. Port Hardy's economy is based on the Utah copper mine, logging and fishing.

While Mayor Brian Welshman welcomed the ferry terminal and the connecting highway, claiming it means a new dimension in transportation and tourism, there are those who dread the change.

He says Port Hardy is already threatened by the "professional transients" who work long enough at the mine to make a bundle and then move on.

He said Port Hardy had its first bank robbery a few days ago and its first two rape cases in the past year.

He says when Port Hardy grows, as is inevitable, the close ties that bind him and his neighbors will be gone.

"My feelings are a little bit mixed," he says. "I question whether the change is for the better."

Teacher Mike Rippigale also is dubious about the future. He questions whether his community will benefit from the impact of the new highway and terminal link.

"It's a moot point," he said.

The new highway opens up an area in which the B.C. Development Corporation owns about 170 acres. The remainder is mostly Crown land and is zoned industrially.

BCDC spokesman Bill Bolin of Vancouver said the corporation is already negotiating with Port Hardy municipality on the expensive project of having water piped in to support the industry that will come.

Bolin said it is expected that individual water-oriented developments will take place along the shoreline, the first of which could be a fish processing plant that could be in operation by next year.

The land abutting the new highway is mostly Crown land. Port Hardy's community plan allows for heavy industrial development.

Bolin said a combination of BCDC and Crown land could be used for the developments.

In anticipation of the invasion of people such development will bring and the tourists the new ferry link will draw, a K and R shopping mall is being planned and some residents say The Bay is also considering moving in.

Gas shortages in the U.S., coupled with news that ferry line-ups to the B.C. mainland are expected to reach record highs, will undoubtedly encourage more Vancouver Islanders to stay put.

If that's the holiday outlook for your family, check out the detailed map of Vancouver Island produced by the Surveys and Mapping branch of the Ministry of Environment.

The island is bigger and more complex than even most of its own residents believe.

The scale is six miles to the inch and the over-all size of the map is 70 cm. by 107 cm.

Last week marked the retirement of Times cameraman Irving Strickland after nearly 66 years of continuous employment, mostly as a photographer. We said we thought that might be a record term for a photographer on a single paper.

But a reader dropped us a line quoting the April 3 St. John's, Nfld., Evening Telegram, with the story of Walter Churchill, who began working on that paper in the press room when he was 14 and is still there after 63½ years.

They believe the slower you travel the more you see and the more you learn about a country and its people. They plan to document the cultural and geographic changes along the way and write about their experiences when they get home.

Their project has received the support of film and camera publications and the National Geographic Society. They hope to complete the trip in four months.

The magazine was so struck by the picture it had it enlarged to 18 x 28 inches and gave it to the Seabus designer, Case Laboratories Ltd., to add to the gallery of marine illustrations decorating the firm's foyer on Cave Street.

The Seabus concept, meanwhile, is being developed by Case to solve a major urban transit problem in Rio de Janeiro.

Hiker airlifted

A hospital spokesman said Kim Drew was able to walk into the hospital after arriving in a Labrador search-and-rescue helicopter from CFB Comox.

She had been on the trail with an outdoor education class from the school.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said a passing fishboat, the Dutchman I, radioed for help about 6:50 this morning.

Building Vetoed

Saanich council Monday night rejected a developer's proposal to house 40 doctors and dentists in a new professional building on the south side of Vernon Avenue.

On a split 4-4 vote council turned down the rezoning application of Concord Credits Ltd. before referring it to the public hearing stage.

Those opposed felt the project might prejudice the comprehensive commercial development of the so-called civic core area between Vernon and Seymour.

Similar concerns about "piecemeal" development of the area had been expressed by council's Advisory Planning Commission, although the commission recommended approval.

Macaulay STOL field plan opposed

Mayor Art Young said today the $8 million estimated cost of turning the national defence property into a short takeoff airport would be better spent upgrading facilities at Patricia Bay airport.

Part of the property at Macaulay Point, including waterfront with former artillery installations, is proposed for a terminal to accommodate short takeoff and landing aircraft as the Dash 7, which was demonstrated here last week.

The plane is suggested for Victoria-Vancouver service, preferably on a downtown to dowtown basis that would eliminate long ground connections with the conventional airports.

"It may have some merit but we think $8 million would be much better spent upgrading Patricia Bay," Youbg said.

"We don't think it's practical, really, when you spend $5 million for the aircraft and $8 million for a runway. Patricia Bay is not that far away.".

The real focal point of Greater Victoria is the Douglas-McKenzie intersection, and if that were to be a STOL base most people would have to drive there.

Besides, only one per cent of the population would use the downtown-downtown service, Young said.

Long range plans in Esquimalt call for the eventual turnover of Macaulay Point land for public greenbelt and residential purposes.

Young said the community plan has included this proposal for the past two years as part of the regional plan for the capital.

There are alternative means of achieving the change of ownership and use, provided the defence department and ministry of transport are agreeable.

Young said the two federal departments will be informed of council's position, with a copy to the city of Victoria.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. We keep hearing that Canada has the longest coastline in the world. Is that true and how long is it? B.W.

A. Yes. Canada's Atlantic coastline is 9,843 miles, the Pacific coastline is 4,363 and the Arctic coastline, 11,884.

Farmers get water discount

Saanich farmers will be able to buy water for irrigation at a special discount rate despite a warning from a municipal official that the price reduction would create excessive demands for water.

Saanich council agreed Monday night that water for farmland within the urban containment boundary be made available at a rate only 15 per cent more than the wholesale rate of 18 cents per 1,000 gallons, which Saanich pays to the Greater Victoria Water District.

Farmers now pay the normal retail rate charged to all water consumers — 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

In 1977, 48 agricultural users consumed just over 28 million gallons or 1.24 per cent of all water sold in the municipality.

But municipal engineer Clifford Warren said the potential demand from farmers within the urban containment boundary could be as high as 500 million gallons.

As one example, he noted that a recent application for providing irrigation water to Panama Flats (a potato farm operated by the sons of Saancih Ald. Geoff Vantreight) involves 25 million gallons — almost equal to the total annual demand by 48 other farm operations.

However, Ian Vantreight told council this estimate of water consumption on the Panama Flats land was substantially inaccurate. He said minimal irrigation was required so far because the flood plain had retained a considerable volume of surface water.

Art Garcia, spokesman for the South Saanich Farmers' Institute, also claimed that fears of excessive water use by farmers under the preferential rate were ill-founded.

Even if they went "hog wild," he added, the consumption would not amount to five per cent of all the water sold in Saanich.

A brief from the institute estimated demand could increase roughly five times, to a level of about 150 million gallons.

Council was told that Saanich now produces about $14,000 revenue in supplying 30 million gallons to farmers at the regular retail rate of 18 cents per 1,000 gallons.

That would drop to about $6,000 — in effect, an $8,000 subsidy — by charging the wholesale rate plus 15 per cent.

Only Aldermen Sandy Noel and Irene Block voted against the preferential rate. Ald. John Mika described the subsidy involved as a mere pittance in relation to the agricultural industry's value to the community.

Fire victims homeless

Neighbors have launched a drive to aid a young mother and her two infant children who lost all their possessions in a fire early today.

The blaze gutted their home on Kemp Lake Road, west of Sooke.

The victims have only the clothes they were wearing when they fled the blaze.

Sooke RCMP said today that Mrs. Barbara Oke, 23, escaped without injury with her two young children, aged 20 months and 5 months, when fire broke out in the attic at about 3 a.m.

Police said the Otter Point volunteer fire department was able only to keep the blaze from spreading to nearby woods.

Cause of the fire is thought to be an electrical fault.

Oke has gone to stay with her mother, who also lives in the Sooke area.

A concerned neighbor said the family lost everything and urgently needs clothing and other household articles.

Anyone wishing to offer the family assistance should call 642-3847. Major items such as a fridge, stove or washing machine are badly needed.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was mixed in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in shares of Canadian Long Island Petroleum Ltd. was halted at 1:40 p.m. at the company's request pending an announcement. The stock last traded at 99 cents.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said subdivided shares of Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. will be posted for trading without nominal or par value at the opening Monday, replacing the currently listed shares. Shareholders approved a two-for-one split on May 4.

Subdivided common shares of S. B. McLaughlin Associates Ltd. will be posted for trading without par value at the opening Wednesday, replacing the currently listed shares. Also posted will be new 10-per-cent cumulative redeemable second preferred shares, par value $2.00 each. Shareholders on May 30 approved the subdividing of each common share into one new common share and one-fifth of a second preferred share.

Among other industrials, Gulf Canada fell 2¾ to 54¼, Dome Petroleum 1⅞ to $45⅛, Texaco Canada 1¾ to $67½, Asbestos Corp. 1¼ to $42½ and Home Oil A 1¼ to $63¼.

Westburne International rose 1½ to $48¾, CAE Industries A 1½ to $31½, Falconbridge Nickel A 1¼ to $60, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas ⅝ to $66¼ and Brascan A ½ to $24⅞.

Camflo Mines was down ½ to $13⅞, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ¼ to $19¾ and Dome Mines ¼ to $46½. McIntyre Mines was up ⅝ to $45⅞ and Dickenson Mines ½ to $8½.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum declined 1⅛ to $18⅞, Canadian Superior Oil ¾ to $130¾ and Ulster Petroleums 10 cents to $4.45. Worldwide Energy advanced 1 to $9⅜ and Total Petroleum North America ¾ to $27⅞.

New York

Standard Oil of Ohio gained 1⅞ to $56⅜. It said it plans to acquire Webb Resources and Newco Exploration, Denver-based oil and gas firms.

Tesoro Petroleum rose ¾ to $13¾. Spokesman Mike MacDonald said "apparently there is a considerable institutional interest" in the company's shares.

Charter was up ⅛ to $20¼. It is reducing its share of the Bahamian refinery it acquired last month from 65 per cent to 50 per cent. Standard Oil of California, which gained ⅞ to $46⅝ will raise its stake in the plant from 35 per cent to 50 per cent.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — The London stock market fell moderately near the close of trading today. The Financial Times index was down 3.0 to 507.9. Industrials declined but golds, oils and banks advanced. Canadian shares eased.

CIL moves more staff

MONTREAL (UPC) — Canadian Industries Ltd. will transfer 87 employees from its Montreal head office to Toronto by Sept. 1, bringing the total number of relocated staff to 300 since 1977.

The move will reduce the company's accounting, purchasing, treasury, computer systems and sulphur products units in Montreal.

A company spokesman said it does not represent a gradual effort to relocate the CIL headquarters. However, "if it should become clear that such a (head office) move would be in the interests of its customers, shareholders and employees," the company would not hesitate to leave Quebec.

VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were mixed in active trading today as the Vancouver Stock Exchange recorded a mid-day volume of 1,813,071 shares.

Hal Roach Studios led industrial issues and gained a dime to $3.80 on a turnover of 15,900 shares. Grouse Mountain also added 10 cents to .95 on 5,700 shares, Ardiem Industrial Corp was steady at .25 on 4,000 shares and Taro Industries gained a nickel to $3.65 on 3,000 shares.

Liberty Petroleums gained a dime to $2 on a trade of 90,100 to lead resource issues. Carolin Mines Ltd. added .75 to $13.25 on 50,400 shares, Amber Resources was steady at $1.20 on 42,100 shares and Quatsino Copper-Gold was unchanged at .40.
